Asks Addition of $4,848,171,957 to Funds for Defense

U. S Will Not be Aggressor.
Or Send Men to Europe's Wars,
Roosevelt Asserts in Message

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt asked congress to authorize an additional $4,848,171,957 for defense today in a special message asserting that "we will not use our arms in a war of aggression; we will not send our men to take part in European wars."

Mr. Roosevelt's request brought to approximately $10,000,000,000 the funds and contract authorizations asked this session for land, sea and air armaments. Previously the president had asked and the congress voted about $5,000,000,000 in the two categories.

Specifically, Mr. Roosevelt today requested $2,161,441,957 in a cash appropriation and $2,686,730,000 of contract authorizations. The latter would permit congress to appropriate later a like amount.

"The principal lesson of the war up to the present time is that partial defense is inadequate defense," Mr. Roosevelt declared.

Will Remain Free

"So great a sum means sacrifice. So large a program means hard work—the participation of the whole country in the total defense of the country. This nation through sacrifice and work and unity proposes to remain free."

The president outlined the government's "immediate objectives" as follows:

"1. To carry forward the naval expansion program designed to build up the navy to meet any possible combination of hostile naval forces."

"2. To complete the total equipment for a land force of approximately 1,200,000 men, though of course this total of men would not be in the army in time of peace."

Reserve Stocks

"3. To procure reserve stocks of tanks, guns, artillery, ammunition, etc., for another 800,000 men or a total of 2,000,000 men if a mobilization of such a force should become necessary."

"4. To provide for manufacturing facilities, public and private, necessary to produce critical items of equipment required for a land force of 2,800,000 men, and to produce the emergency items required for the aircraft program of the army and navy—guns, bombs, armor, bomb sights and ammunition."

"5. Procurement of 15,000 additional planes for the army and 4,000 for the navy, complete with necessary spare engines, armaments, and the most modern equipment."

Selective Training

Mentioning that congress was considering enactment of a system of "selective training" to develop "the necessary man-power to operate this material and man-power to full army non-combat needs," Mr. Roosevelt commented—but without specifying what plan he favored:

"In this way we can make certain that when this modern material becomes available, it will be placed in the hands of troops trained, seasoned and ready, and that replacement material can be guaranteed."

At one point Mr. Roosevelt declared: "We fully understand the threat of the new enslavement in which men may not speak, may not listen, may not think. As these threats become more numerous and their dire meaning more clear, it deepens the determination of the American people to meet them with wholly adequate defense."

"We have seen nation after nation, some of them weakened by treachery from within, succumb to the threat of the new enslavement."

Just Proving the Power Of Newspaper Want Ads

Hastings, Neb.—(P)—Don Wilmes and Don Auten, surveying their parched crops, declared they needed rain badly.

So they put this ad in a newspaper: "Wanted, countrywide two-inch rain, slow and steady."

First results came soon in the form of .58 of an inch rain at Hastings. They hope for even better results.

Dollars and Scents

In manufacturing "Attar of Roses," two tons of rose petals are required in order to produce just one pound of this valuable fragrant oil. Here is a striking example of how a huge mass of small things are employed to secure the result desired. We can't help but point out the similar situation with Post-Crescent Want Ads, where the cumulative effect of a great amount of small messages brings you the results you want. The beauty is that you buy these messages so very reasonably—

Welcomes Quiz, Willkie States

Thinks New Deal Is Nervous Over Result Of Coming Election

Colorado Springs, Colo.—(P)—

Wendell L. Willkie said today a projected senate committee investigation of his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination was evidence that "the New Deal must indeed be nervous about the outcome of the election."

Willkie arrived here last night for a three-week vacation. He declared he would "just loaf" during the first week, would see a number of Republican leaders in the second week and would devote the third to preparation of his formal address accepting the nomination.

The New York nominee was informed during his plane trip westward that Chairman Gillette (Iowa) of the state campaign investigating committee wanted to inquire into "the alleged high pressure telegraphic campaign in behalf of Wendell Willkie."

Willkie Comment

Gillette, talking with reporters in Washington, said he had received numerous complaints that delegates to the Republican national convention were deluged with telegrams urging support of Willkie. Gillette

Tile Firms Fined
By Federal Judge

Chicago—(P)—Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe imposed sentence today on 41 defendants who had entered pleas of nolo contendere to charges of violating the Sherman anti-trust law in the tile industry.

Six of the corporate and individual defendants were ordered to pay $1,000 fines. They were the U. S. Quarry Tile company, Parkersburg, W. Va.; Sparta Ceramic company, E. Sparta, Ohio; Cambridge Tile Manufacturing company, Cincinnati, Ohio; America-Franklin-Olean Tiles Inc., Lansdale, Pa.; R. C. Faulstich, Madison, Wis., representative for U. S. Quarry and Sparta companies; Joseph A. Death, Chicago representative for America-Franklin-Olean.

The other 35 defendants were fined $1,000 each but the fines were suspended and they were placed on probation for one year. The court's order first provided for five years' probation, but counsel for the defendants protested, saying only one year had been given in similar cases in Detroit and St. Louis. The government did not object, so Judge Igoe changed it to one year.

Stimson's confirmation came after two days of acrimonious debate which closed when Democratic Leader Barkley appealed for approval in the interests of national unity.

Many senators who opposed Stimson because of his views on international affairs said they would vote against the Knox appointment on the same grounds.

During the debate Stimson and Knox were bracketed as "interventionists" by their critics, who asserted the nominations represented dangerous new moves by the administration along a path leading toward war.

Gaelic Professor at U. W. Off to Canada
For Service in War

Madison—(P)—Professor Miles Dillon, head of the University of Wisconsin's department of Gaelic, and his brother-in-law, John B. de la Touche, of Jackson, Miss., have gone to Ottawa to offer their services in the Canadian wartime forces.

Mrs. Dillon today confirmed the departure of her husband and brother, but said she did not know the type of service for which they would volunteer. She said they expected to return here temporarily before taking assignments in Canada or abroad.

Prof. Dillon came here from Dublin, Ireland, in September, 1938, to head the newly established chair of Irish language and literature at the university. He is the son of John Burke Dillon, famed Irish statesman.

Mr. de la Touche, also a member of a family of distinguished Irish statesmen, immigrated from County Wicklow, Ireland. He served with military forces in the world wars.

Completion of senate action will end an interregnum of several weeks in the nation's key defense posts and put two Republicans in charge of an expanding army and navy program for which about $5,000,000,000 in cash already has been provided.

MAY NOT RUN—Senator

Burton K. Wheeler of Montana will not seek the presidential nomination if President Roosevelt is a candidate, he said today.

Asserting he would not be a party to a "stop-Roosevelt" movement, Wheeler told reporters that continued silence by the president would have the effect of quashing all other candidates.

"Of course, Mr. Roosevelt can have the nomination—he has the votes to get it on the first ballot if he wants it, and there is no question about that," Wheeler declared.

Virtually every politician here believes the president will accept a "draft" nomination, but Mr. Roosevelt himself again parried questions on the subject at his press conference yesterday.

He would not say when he would disclose his intentions. Asked whether he might go to Chicago during the convention next week, he recalled a previous announcement that he would cruise on the Potomac next weekend and had no plans thereafter.

Garner Remains
Wheeler's position appeared to leave Vice President Garner as the only other aspirant whose friends still insisted that his name would be placed in nomination.

There was considerable doubt as to the stand likely to be taken by Postmaster General Farley, since some members of the Massachusetts delegation nominally pledged to him have publicly advocated that the president run for a third term.

While the Democratic situation remained uncertain, Republicans went quickly ahead with their plans, scheduling a meeting tomorrow of the campaign advisory group picked by Wendell L. Willkie before he left yesterday for a Colorado vacation.

Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, one of Willkie's chief advisors, was expected to arrive late today for conferences with the

Special Provision

Defense Facilities

Washington—(P)—Agreement has been reached that the forthcoming excess profits tax shall carry a special provision permitting amortization over a five-year period of additional industrial facilities created for necessary national defense purposes.

This announcement was made by Stephen Early, the president's press secretary, after Mr. Roosevelt had conferred with Secretary Morgenthau, Jesse Jones, the federal loan administrator; William Knudsen, of the national defense commission; Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.) of the senate finance committee, and Chairman Cooper (D-Tenn.) of a house subcommittee on taxation.

Early said that the amortization provision, designed to protect industrialists against the uncertainties of the international situation, would affect such additional facilities as were certified by the army and navy and the advisory commission of the national defense council as being immediately necessary for national defense purposes.

"It also was unanimously agreed," Early said in a statement, "that the proposed excess profits tax bill, which will apply generally to all industries, will be substituted for the excess profits provisions of the Vinson-Trammell act which now apply only to army and navy aircraft and naval vessels."

"The contemplated action is expected not only to simplify the multiple tax problems of prospective contractors but to greatly clarify their future tax liabilities."

Shanghai—(P)—Japanese residents of Shanghai at a meeting tonight demanded in a resolution that Colonel Dewitt Peck, United States marine commander, "apologize for insults offered to the Japanese."

The meeting, attended by about 1,000, was a high-spot of anti-American agitation by Shanghai Japanese resulting from the five-hour detention Sunday of 16 Japanese gendarmes arrested in the American defense area of the International Settlement.

Washington—(P)—Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), removed himself today from the list of presidential aspirants who expect their names to go before the Democratic national convention regardless of President Roosevelt's plans.

British and Italians Clash in Naval Battle

Both Sides Claim Victory
In Conflicting Accounts

FARLEY KEEPS HIS SECRET—Postmaster General James A. Farley (right), chairman of the Democratic national committee, indulged in expressive gestures during conversation with a reporter on his arrival in Chicago, but he kept to himself the big secret on President Roosevelt's third term intentions. Farley arrived in Chicago early to plan strategy at the national convention in the Chicago stadium.

British Report 10 Nazi Planes Down in Battle

Say Nearly 150 Ships Involved in Clash Over English Southern Coast

London—(P)—The air ministry said 11 German planes were shot down during attacks on British shipyards and coasts today and many more were believed damaged severely.

London—(P)—Ten German planes were reported shot down this afternoon in a great air battle over England's southern coast and the English channel involving nearly 150 planes.

An air-raid warden at a southeastern English port said two formations of German raiders, each nearly 50 strong, attacked a convoy of small ships and he believed one ship was sunk.

"I saw three bombers go down in less than two minutes as the British fighter pilots maneuvered to encircle the Nazis," he declared.

The warden was authority for the estimate of the forces involved and German planes destroyed.

The warden said that in a colossal dive-bombing assault, the Germans enveloped the ships in a cloud of smoke.

Anti-aircraft guns (presumably on the ships or the nearby coast) helped the fighting planes break up the road and smoke poured from several of the raiders as they retreated toward Boulogne, on the French coast.

Formation Split
British accounts of another phase of the battle, over land, said more than 30 German bombers, accompanied by German Messerschmitt fighting planes, kept in close formation until swift British Spitfires split them up. Then they released their bombs, shaking buildings for miles inland, and turned back toward France, according to British accounts.

The government announced that "a few persons" had been killed on the south coast of Britain when German bombers struck there.

Anti-aircraft batteries went into action elsewhere along the coast as raiders made attacks which have become almost a daily routine. Many casualties were reported to have been caused in Wales by German bombs.

German Claim
Berlin—(P)—Twenty-eight British planes were shot down during an attack yesterday on the German base at Stavanger, Norway, the high command asserted today.

Earlier a communique had reported that all of 12 British planes attacking Stavanger yesterday were shot down. (The British have admitted loss of seven planes there.)

German fighting planes also shot down seven British bombers attempting to raid Amiens, in France, said the high command in a communique.

It was announced that German bombers had sunk a British cruiser and four merchant ships and damaged others.

Milwaukee—(P)—Police and sheriff's department squads found Ignatz Guzlecki, 48, reclining comfortably in a hammock on the farm of a friend late yesterday and took him into custody as an escaped convict from a state penitentiary farm at Waupun.

Guzlecki, sentenced from Walworth county for chicken theft, escaped July 2. The farmer, whose place is south of Milwaukee, did not know Guzlecki was being sought.

Hungary Told To Mark Time

Can't Press Demands
On Rumania Just Now,
Hitler Tells Leaders

Munich—(P)—Hungary's leaders were told definitely by Adolf Hitler and the foreign ministers of Germany and Italy today that Hungary must not upset the Balkan apiece at this time by trying to "secure her rights" from Rumania, informed German sources said.

Premier Count Pal Teleki and Foreign Minister Count Istvan Csaky, who came to discuss Hungary's demands that Rumania restore at least part of war-lost Transylvania to her, conferred first with Foreign Ministers Joachim von Ribbentrop and Count Galeazzo Ciano and then were received by Hitler.

While both Hitler and Premier Mussolini of Italy are agreed that their program for scrapping the Versailles and other World war treaties means also revision in the Near East, the informants said Hitler holds this is not the time for revisionists to press their claims too aggressively.

However, a brief communique issued by DNB, the official German news agency, said the German-Italian-Hungarian discussions "proceeded in the spirit of the traditional friendly relations among the three states."

There were indications that measures for tightening the blockade against England through closer integration of the Balkans in the axis economic system were discussed.

Desperado Dies in Michigan Prison

Marquette, Mich.—(P)—Fred "Killer" Burke, 47, accused of taking part in the Chicago St. Valentine's day massacre of hoodlums on Feb. 14, 1929, and half a dozen other major crimes, died today in the Northern Michigan branch prison here.

He had served nine years and three months of a life term for murder of a St. Joseph, Mich., policeman. Prison officials attributed his death to a heart attack.

Burke was a model prisoner and foreman of the prison's leather goods department.

Two arrests in 1917 for obtaining money under false pretenses as a real estate salesman launched Burke on his career of crime. He served ten months of a 1 to 5-year term in Southern Michigan prison on a life charge two years later. In 1921, Burke was sentenced from Jefferson City, Mo., to a two-year term for forgery.

In addition to the St. Valentine's day mass killing, major crimes attributed to Burke included bank robberies at Louisville, Ky., and Jefferson, Wis., and an armed robbery at Toledo, Ohio, in which a man was killed.

Netherlands Tanker Is Torpedoed; Three Die

Lisbon—(P)—Thirty crew members of the Netherlands tanker Lucrecia 2,584 tons, landed today at Porto, Portugal, and reported their vessel had been torpedoed and sunk off the Spanish coast. The captain and two seamen were killed.

Test of Strength
The last seems to have been purely a test of British sea power versus Italian air power. Three Italian planes failed to return from this clash, but yesterday's day-long bombing of the British naval formation which had left Gibraltar gave "evidence of the effective results," as the Italian high command expressed it.

The eastern and central engagements tested both the naval and aerial strength of the two belligerents.

The Italians declared that the main British naval force was turned back from its apparent objective of raiding the central Mediterranean and thus the Italians claimed victory.

The Italians' official communique related that the main British force, itself divided into three groups, was sighted on Monday by Italian air scouts, moving westward between the islands of Crete and the North African coast.

Oklahoma Solons are Winners in Contest

Oklahoma City—(P)—Oklahoma's nine congressmen, who stuck to their jobs in Washington and let campaigning back home take care of itself, apparently were rewarded today with re-nomination by the state's Democrats.

Balloting was much lighter than in the 1938 elections, when 600,000 votes were cast.

Fastest runner of all was Will Rogers, congressman-at-large. He trampled the hopes of former Governor William H. "Alfalfa" Murray and 15 other opponents.

Unofficial returns from 2,481 of 3,613 precincts showed Rogers had picked up 100,000 votes to 70,000 for Murray. Not another candidate in the race had a vote in any precinct.

Read declared "the fact that this picture was made available by one of the totalitarian governments at this particular time looks to me like there is too close a connection between the warlords and warmongers who stand to share the fruits of appropriations that result from the showing of such pictures as this."

Representative Lewis (R-Ohio) interpreted the film as an attempt to propagandize congress for the purpose of causing larger appropriations but said he was not yet ready to fix responsibility. He said his attitude "was one of resentment."

Frey's Foes Move To Curb His Power

Sportsman's Congress Condemns His Conduct of Investigation

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau) Madison—(P)—Indications continued today that the No. 2 man in the Heil administration, Director of Research August Frey, will soon face a challenge of his authority in connection with his activities in investigating state government departments and their policies.

Frey's exact function in the state governmental system has never been defined, although the 1939 statute under which he acts apparently bestows upon his department blanket powers of investigation under the director of Governor Heil himself.

Lately, however, there have been various reports that state department heads may go to the attorney general for an opinion in an effort to trim his authority and to narrow it down to the specific purpose of the bureau, to discover and recommend to the governor and the legislature means of increasing efficiency and lowering costs by consolidations, eliminations and reorganizations in the state government machinery.

Steps on Toes

Frey thus far has gone unchallenged in a legal sense, although he has inspired torrents of criticism and abuse from those upon whose toes he has stepped in his indiscriminate investigations of the state government's various bureaus, and most particularly, the state conservation department.

Last week a violent quarrel between Frey and his subordinates, and John W. Roach, chief of the beverage tax division, was squelched when Roach's superior, State Treasurer John M. Smith, acceded to Frey's demand for the records of Roach's division. The quarrel started when Madison newspaper accounts described Frey as responsible for a delay in the purchase of liquor stamps for Roach's division, with resultant losses to liquor dealers who were unable to anticipate the new federal revenue law. Frey demanded Roach's records, but the latter refused to allow them to leave his office. If Frey wanted to examine records, he could come to the bureau's files, just as any other citizen, according to Roach.

It remains possible, however, that officers of the conservation department will ask Attorney General John E. Martin to interpret the powers of the bureau. The conservation department feels that instead of a factual investigation, the research unit under Frey is trying to smear its record and policies in the eyes of the public.

Next to the governor himself, Frey is today the most powerful figure in the state government. He keeps an eye on all personnel hiring, all purchases, and through his well-staffed bureau of accountants and lawyers, he is embarked on a program which ultimately will put every major state government division under his critical microscope.

Madison—(P)—A sharply worded resolution describing the state research bureau's investigation of the conservation department as "biased and unfair," and calling upon Governor Heil to curb the scope of the inquiry, was adopted by the Conservation congress at the closing session of its two-day meeting here yesterday.

Introduced by Louis Radke, of Horicon, the measure was adopted three times, first by standing vote, then on roll call—which was questioned—and another standing vote.

Although supporters said the statement was approved "practically unanimously" on the first vote, a roll call was taken at the request of Clara Wildner of Superior. This showed 23 counties for the resolution, seven against, and 41 not voting.

The resolution declared the investigation was being conducted to "hamstring and delay the conservation program," and condemned the "intemperate, sensational and unfounded charges and statements made by the director (August Frey) of the research division."

The division has been investigating various land trades, some of which were negotiated by the conservation department with its employees through "dummies."

The remainder of the session was devoted to a debate on the opening and closing dates of fishing seasons in various localities.

Dr. Schneiders was reelected chairman of the congress executive council and Dr. J. A. Riegel, St. Croix Falls, was reelected vice chairman. Clarence Searls of Wisconsin Rapids, was named secretary, succeeding John O'Leary of Minocqua.

Conservation Club Picnic Slated July 21; Reports Given

Plans for a picnic July 21 were announced last night at Outagamie Conservation club held its regular meeting at the courthouse. Phelan Van Ryzin and Wilbur Steenis told of the coming affair, to be held at Stroebe's island. Many prizes will be given, with a motor the major award. A large boat will be on hand to run excursions to the yacht club throughout the day, and other entertainment features are being arranged.

Len Zehn resigned as treasurer, with Fred Rehfeldt named to fill the office until his successor is elected. William Donlinger and Herman Price reported on the Wisconsin Game Congress, held Monday and Tuesday at Madison, to which they were the county's representatives. Henry Van Ryzin gave a report on the recent dance at Greenville sponsored by the group.

Convention 17th Major Party Confab in Chicago's History

BY WILLIAM J. CONWAY

Chicago—(P)—A cannon boomed on the roof of the wigwam convention hall. A crowd of 10,000 roared. Boat whistles shrilled. Church bells clanged.

The reason: Abraham Lincoln's nomination.

The celebration, in the wake of Chicago's first big political convocation, continued through the night, May 17, 1936.

Citizens enjoyed the furor. Innkeepers fancied the fresh money in their tills.

As a result, Chicagoans have entertained 11 major nominating conventions—11 Republican and 5 Democratic—and are eager to play host to No. 17 when the Democrats convene here next Monday.

As a reward, they have witnessed much of the nation's presidential history while it was still hot.

For instance:

1884: The mutter of artillery fire and the rumble of cheers filtered into the exposition building. The throng outside was hailing the nomination of Grover Cleveland. He had not yet been nominated but the Democratic delegates quickly provided a bona fide basis for the jubilation. Parades formed. The boys rolled out a barrel on a loop side-walk. Beer was free.

1896: The dominant slogan was 16 to 1. The odds-on favorite was "Silver."

Interstate Migration Will be Investigated

Washington—(P)—Chairman Tolson (D-Calif.) of a special house committee investigating interstate migration said today that investigators would be sent into the midwest and the deep south late this week to prepare for hearings at Chicago and Montgomery, Ala., in mid-August.

Investigator Abe Kramer, he said, had been assigned the Chicago area and would study conditions in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota and various rural regions of Ohio and Indiana.

War Situation Today

British, Rome Claim Victory In Mediterranean Sea Battle

British and Italian fleets clashed violently over almost the entire length of the Mediterranean yesterday, but the outcome of the battle is somewhat clouded inasmuch as both sides claim victory.

Italians, admitting their losses were heavier than those of the British, asserted they had broken up an attempt by the royal navy to raid Italian coastal defenses, but the British said they "chased" the Italians into the shelter of their own ports and denied any casualties.

Rome admitted one of its destroyers and a submarine were sunk and that a battleship was hit. It also admitted 29 killed and 69 wounded, but said a British warship also was damaged.

France's new totalitarian regime, meanwhile, sought a "scapegoat" for the French defeat, with the senate's national defense and foreign affairs committee voting unanimously to investigate "the responsibilities for origins and conduct of the war."

French senators and deputies also met in a joint secret session to affirm a bill empowering a sweeping revision of the French government into a virtual dictatorship under the 84-year-old Premier Petain.

In Munich, the danger of war in the Balkans was apparently checked when Fuehrer Adolf Hitler told Hungary's leaders that Hungary must not upset the Balkan apocryphal at this time.

Hitler reportedly has promised Hungary that she will eventually regain the province of Transylvania, held by Rumania since the world war settlement.

Today, however, he instructed Premier Teleky that the time is not ripe for Hungary to try to "secure her right" by military action against Rumania—which in all likelihood would set the Balkans aflame and jeopardize Germany's badly-needed supply of oil and foodstuffs from Rumania.

Measures for tightening the blockade against the British Isles were also reported discussed at the Munich conference.

Nazi air-raids on the British island kingdom were intensified, pilots bombing airports, munitions works and all depots.

This afternoon, in a whirling sky battle—the biggest seen off Britain's shores—150 British and German planes fought a spectacular duel after 34 Nazi bombers attacked shipping in the English channel.

Earlier, British R. A. F. fighter planes reportedly drove off German Messerschmitts, with at least two German planes shot down.

The Mayor Should be Careful; It's Leap Year

Milwaukee—(P)—A 16-year-old high school sophomore appeared at Johnston emergency hospital yesterday, her romantic ardor somewhat chilled from an infected arm.

Upon the arm, attendants found, she had used a razor blade to carve a heart with a cupid's arrow through it, and beneath, two sets of initials—"A. T." and "C. Z."

The first initials were the girl's, the second set, she shyly admitted, were those of Mayor Carl Zeidler, a bachelor, whom she never had met, but whose face and voice she had admired from a distance.

Texas was on the bandwagon, too. It was all over but the shouting. Boos from the gallery trailed off in the booming chorus of "Happy Days are Here Again."

A notable absentee was Al Smith. He had taken a historic walk.

1932: More than 23,000 sat in tense anticipation in the stadium. The fourth roll call reached the "C" states. William Gibbs McAdoo concluded an address this way:

"And so, my friends, California casts 44 votes for Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Texas was on the bandwagon, too. It was all over but the shouting. Boos from the gallery trailed off in the booming chorus of "Happy Days are Here Again."

Heil's Secretary to Seek Nomination as United States Senator

Madison—(P)—William C. Maas, who announced his candidacy yesterday for the Republican nomination for United States senator, will receive no active administration support, Governor Heil announced today.

Although Maas has been his executive secretary for the past 18 months, the governor said he had "no favorites" in the senatorial race, and had not discussed the matter with his aide.

"I am strictly neutral," the governor said. "I will take no active part in any candidate's campaign for the United States senate. I wish them all well."

Despite this apparent "hands-off" policy, the governor, a well-informed capital source disclosed, urged Maas to make the senatorial race. Maas declined to reveal what prompted his decision.

He said he would resign from the governor's staff at least before the end of the month, and that campaign headquarters would be established in Milwaukee soon.

Friday said today that beginning tomorrow he will observe regular office hours in Room 200 of the Menasha post office. The office will be open from 8 o'clock to noon, from 1 o'clock to 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and from 7 o'clock to 8:30 in the evening.

Friday is recruiting for the Sixth corps area which includes Wisconsin, Michigan, and Illinois. He is regularly stationed at Ft. Sheridan, Ill.

A. H. Wilkinson Will Seek State Position

Milwaukee—(P)—A. H. (Lon) Wilkinson, former collector of internal revenue, announced today his candidacy for the Republican nomination as state treasurer.

Wilkinson, who represented Ashland, Bayfield, Sawyer, Rusk and Price counties in the state senate following the 1916 election, held the collector's post in Milwaukee from 1921 to 1933.

Reprieve for Rumania, Hungary Told to Wait

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York—(P)—Nazi Germany, sitting at Munich as judge, jury and high executioner, today told Hungarian leaders that their nation must not "try to secure her rights" from Rumania at this time, a German report said.

No matter what happens, King Carol can't help himself. He has nothing to say about the matter. He must take orders from Berlin or go through the mill.

This is a fair representation of Nazi domination of Europe at the moment. It provides concrete backing for the statement made the other day by Robert Ley, German labor front director, that France as an aging decrepit must yield European continental hegemony to youthful, virile Germany.

There is only one power which could intervene to block a German decision regarding the Balkans—or any other European countries for that matter. That is Russia. No one else has the strength, with France smashed and Britain facing an attack against her life.

Should the Bolsheviks take strong-arm action in opposition to Germany, that automatically would throw the Muscovites and the Britons into the same camp. Ipo facto we should have an Anglo-Russian partnership.

Paris brings me up to my main point. Whether they like it or not (and they don't like it) Russia and England are headed for cooperation. They are going to be thrown together sooner or later (probably sooner) by force of circumstances—Nazi domination. That is, this will happen unless Hitler succeeds in his threat to crush Britain.

Balance of Power Gone

This situation has been brought about by the destruction of the balance of power in Europe. The power is largely in the hands of one individual—Herr Hitler. He can do as he likes because there isn't sufficiently strong opposition to stop him.

The Anglo-French brotherhood used to maintain the balance of power. That influence is buried on the battlefield of Flanders.

If this position is to be rectified, the balance of power must be restored.

"Balance of power" means a "just equilibrium" between nations which will prevent one of them, or a group of them, from dominating the rest. That is, if we have a strong nation (Germany for instance), or group of nations, on one side of the scales, without any corresponding weight on the other side, obviously the balance is upset.

So we set about to put on the empty side another nation or combination of nations which will even the balance up.

To illustrate: Before the World war we had the triple alliance—Germany, Austria and Italy. This strong combination was balanced by the triple entente—England, France and Russia.

This set-up prevented any general conflagration until it blew up when the fuse was lit in Sarajevo. What happened, according to many historians, was that the balance of power failed to function at the crucial time. England's attitude was uncertain at the last moment and Kaiser Wilhelm thought she wouldn't fight. Had Germany known definitely that Britain would be against her, there might have been no war.

Ideal of League

The creation of the League of Nations—now defunct, or in a state of suspended animation—was an effort to substitute an international authority for the balance of power. The separate alliances persisted, however. We had wars and rumors of wars until finally we wound up in the present mess.

Now we are up against the restoration of the balance. Maybe it can't be restored. There are many who believe that Hitler will overrun the whole of Europe—and then some. Still, there are many more who think he will be stopped.

The way things stand, restoration of the balance can come only through an alliance between Russia and England. In April of last year Moscow tried to revive the old triple alliance—Russia, France, and England—but the idea failed.

Then the Russo-French mutual assistance pact, which had received a fatal stab at Munich, died with the signing of the non-aggression pact between the Reds and the Nazis. It was this additional strength which enabled Hitler to go ahead with his challenge to the balance of power.

Russo-British cooperation might come at any moment, the way things are breaking, or it might be delayed. But it will come in due course unless, as I have remarked, England is shattered in the coming Nazi attack.

80 Scouts to Gardner Dam

Leave Sunday as Second Week Camp Activities Start

About 80 boy scouts have registered for the second week at the valley council's Gardner Dam camp, and will arrive Sunday, according to Clarence H. Engberg, council executive.

Camp opened Monday, with activities now in full swing. Today some scouts of Appleton Troop 11 and Brillion Troop 46 are on a fishing hike, with the rest of the campers to meet the hikers this evening for a supper on the river. Thursday an exploration and nature hike over the entire camp property is slated.

The new cabins at the camp will be completed this week, Engberg said, with the camp then being able to accommodate 96 in permanent structures. Remodeling of the old garage into a clerk's office, library and store has been finished.

Student Banned From Michigan Will Speak

Madison—(P)—The University League for Liberal Action, Wisconsin campus organization, announced today Hugh Reichard, one of several students banned from the University of Michigan, would speak here Friday night at a meeting in the Memorial union to be held under league auspices.

The announcement said Governor Heil's request that the University of Wisconsin regents take steps to prevent enrollment of students with Communistic or Nazi beliefs would be discussed at the meeting.

Another speaker will be Herbert Witt, New York, executive secretary of the American Student union.

The regents are scheduled to meet here Saturday to act on the governor's request.

Weekend Flight Will Open Milwaukee Fete

Milwaukee—(P)—The Milwaukee Midsummer Festival opening July 13, has invited Wisconsin fliers to join in a week-end flight to the city as a feature of the opening ceremonies of the affair.

The city government and several flying clubs have arranged a program which will include a breakfast Sunday at which Governor Heil and Mayor Carl Zeidler have been invited to speak.

German Surgeon Tells Of Success in Carrying Wounded Men Back

Washington—(P)—Nazi airplane ambulances have been employed effectively in rushing wounded soldiers back from the front, says a report by Dr. W. Tonniss, staff surgeon of the German air forces, reprinted by the Military Surgeon, official journal of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States.

The German army medical corps is using its field hospitals only for emergency work, he wrote. The seriously wounded are put into flying ambulances for immediate transfer to back area, hospitals equipped for major operations and complete care.

At least several hundred planes are believed to have been in constant use as ambulances. They carry a surgeon, nurses, and emergency equipment.

Possibilities of recovery from wounds are greatly enhanced by the aerial ambulance, the German physician said. An injured man is not jolted as he would be in a motor truck or train. He suffers less from shock. Moreover, he gets proper treatment quickly.

How many thousand injured men have been carried by air to hospitals is unknown. However, Dr. Tonniss reported that 2,500 were transported during the Polish campaign. He mentioned the case of one man who was on the operating table at the University of Breslau two hours and a half after he had been wounded at Warsaw. He recovered.

Pension Request Is Turned Down

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt vetoed yesterday a bill to pay Bert W. Helmer, of Green Bay, Wis., a former member of the United States coast guard, a $30 a month pension.

"This veteran filed an application in August, 1934 for pension on account of tuberculosis alleged to have resulted from his service in the United States coast guard," the veto message to the senate said. "He is not entitled to pension for the reason that the disability was incurred prior to the approval of the act of July 2, 1930, an act to apply the pension laws to the coast guard."

The veto message held further that aside from any question of merit in this or similar cases, approval of the bill was objectionable because it would give preferential treatment to the claimant, arbitrarily fix a rate of pension without the usual administrative investigation, and would perpetuate a rate of pension which would not take cognizance of any change in the disability status of the veteran.

Clausen Gets on the Bandwagon for Willkie

Horicon—(P)—Fred H. Clausen, Horicon, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator, declared last night that a candidate for public office should be a businessman.

He said Wendell Willkie, Republican nominee for president, possessed the business experience to deal with national affairs in the way the farmer, laborer and businessman wants.

Appleton Maennerchor to be State Host for Sixth Time

When Appleton Maennerchor is host to the state saengerfest beginning July 19, it will have the experience of 47 years of activity behind it. Five times before, in 1895, 1900, 1921, 1926 and 1933, Wisconsin units have moved on Appleton.

Three members of the group of 20 who met in 1893 still live, Charles A. Feuerstein, Richard Koehler, and Fred Jungman. Franz Burchert of Oshkosh was the first director, being later succeeded by Prof. Otto Huebner, who taught in Ryan High school in Appleton. Upon his death in 1895 Anton Fischer was elected director, conducting the chorus until 1903, when Carl Seeger, then editor of a German newspaper here, reorganized the group. Seeger remained as director until succeeded in turn by Franz Alois Reichel.

Rotarians Take Tour Of Local Creamery; Hear About Festival

Rotarians toured Fairmont Creamery company following their luncheon meeting at Conway hotel yesterday noon, with Charles C. Folkes, company manager, explaining the production processes. Club members sampled the company's products at the tour's conclusion.

Long extended an invitation to Appleton residents to visit the festival. An out-of-town visitors welcome booth will be at the entrance to the festival grounds, where registration will be made, with visitors to receive unusual privileges and courtesies, the speaker stated.

It was voted to raise $4,200 for expenses for the ensuing school year. Receipts for the year were $11,322.30 and disbursements were $9,294.80. Mrs. Wilford Spoehr, Phil Palmer and Lowell Colson were appointed auditing committee for the following year.

One change was made in the teaching faculty for next year. Miss Dorothy Johnson, route 1, Shiocton, will replace Mrs. Anna Lehman in the primary department. The other teachers are Miss Fern Schultz, Bear Creek, principal and seventh and eighth grades; Miss Bernice White, Black Creek, fifth and sixth grades; and Miss Verona Lovejoy, Dale, third and fourth.

State Finance Theory Cast Aside by Decision

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—One of the most important court decisions published here in a long time, judged from its potential effect on state politics and state government policy, is the opinion of Circuit Judge August C. Hoppmann last week which in effect legalizes the Hell administration's diversion of highway department funds.

If allowed to stand—and there has been no indication that an appeal to the state supreme court will be taken—the decision may have a profound effect on future highway policy in Wisconsin. The decision denies the contention of those who have long argued that the highway taxes assessed upon Wisconsin motorists and transportation industries were privilege taxes, and that their enactment was with the understanding that the receipts would be used to build, expand, improve and maintain the highways which produced them.

Logically analyzed, the Hoppmann decision means that the governor and the highway commission of the state, can if they please, spend all or none of the unappropriated highway department funds for highways. The free fund of the highway department, the difference between earmarked legislative appropriations and annual receipts, thus becomes available for whatever purpose the state administration may designate, rather than for extra highway work.

The Hoppmann decision may be of paramount importance because of the unmistakable evidence that diversion of highway funds is increasing, and the lack of any sign that it will soon be halted. Moreover, it is important because of abundant evidence that highway revenues will continue to increase, and that therefore the annual "free fund" in the future will become greater.

In effect also, the court decision destroys the former theory that previous borrowing from the highway commission by the general fund remain obligations on the state treasury to the highway department. By his decision, Judge Hoppmann rules that the highway surplus may be spent in any manner that the state administration sees fit, and therefore the $27,000,000 or so previously diverted, and generally considered a "technical" debt, becomes an equivalent "profit" to the general fund.

Kept Balance

The importance of the highway financing decision lies in the fact that the state legislature for the last decade at least has not maintained solvency in the general fund. The legislature over a 10-year period has authorized greater expenditures than it has enacted revenues. A balance has been maintained by "diverting" highway department receipts.

That policy has been a fertile source of political argument because of the widely accepted belief that the gasoline taxes and motor license fees were intended to be plowed back into the highway system, since the use of the latter resulted in the levying of the taxes.

Had it not been for the fact that Heil decided to "divert" highway funds during his term, the state budget would either have been even more severely out of balance, necessitating cuts in pension, relief, and regular state government operations to a degree greater than those now in effect, or the Republican legislature would have been forced to enact further tax measures.

The litigation upon which Hoppmann's decision was based was initiated and financed by highway interests whose concern in the highway financing problem is commercial, rather than academic. Because of the implications of the decision, it is entirely possible that a further contest may be held before the state supreme court.

For the present the law on the subject, as voiced in the circuit court dictum, holds that highway revenues are general state government receipts, not earmarked or held in trust for highway purposes.

As the state's lawyer said in his court argument, sustained by the court, the legislature did not "intend that every aspect of a civilized society to cease except that of spending, spending and more spending, to build more highways so that we will have more highways to maintain, so that there will be more source of revenue from automobile registration fees, motor vehicle fuel taxes, and operator's license fees so that we can build more highways, etc. ad infinitum."

The Campaign Issue

There is but one question to be decided before the next administration takes office. There is the supreme question, which will affect the whole future of this country and of this hemisphere, as to whether Britain can resist successfully, what the United States can and will do to strengthen the British resistance, and what measures it will take and arrangements it can make for making certain that the whole of the British fleet and all the strategic outposts in the Atlantic and Pacific are not lost and then turned against us. These questions will have to be met during the election campaign itself, and decisions which are absolutely vital decisions will have to be taken by this Administration in consultation with Mr. Willkie. Both nominees will have to take a position on these critical issues knowing that the issues will almost certainly be decided long before the votes can be counted.

These issues are intrinsically above all partisanship and because they will be decided before the election they could not, even if the candidates were so disposed, be dealt with on partisan grounds.

Half Treaties are No Longer Relevant

There are also issues which have been important in the past but are no longer relevant. There are, for example, the Hull treaties which were long to an era when freedom of enterprise was the general rule among the large industrial states. If the totalitarian victory in Europe and Asia is consolidated, and as long as much of Europe and Asia is totalitarian, freedom of enterprise and of commercial exchange is impossible. It will have to be replaced by the organization of export and import cartels under government control. But if the Hull treaties are inapplicable, so also is the Republican conception of the tariff. For the protection of industry and agriculture and labor, though now necessary in a sense that it was never before so necessary, can no longer be had by customs tariffs alone. It can be had only by the organized control of exports and imports and of foreign exchange.

Other issues which have divided the parties will have become equally irrelevant. It is, for example, meaningless now to argue about whether we shall undertake public works in order to prime the pump or in order to provide employment which private industry does not provide. For we are undertaking the most gigantic public works program in our whole history. But the public works are armaments. And they are being constructed not to prime the pump and make work for the unemployed, but in order to obtain ships, planes, guns and tanks out of the plants and labor, employed and unemployed, which the country possesses. It is no longer a question of whether the government shall stimulate private industry try to compete with it, but of the government's obtaining from industry a great navy and air force and an army.

Both Parties Will Find Old Slogans Obsolete

Other issues, which will have become quite unimportant, are a nation which is seriously arming itself in the modern world will certainly have no further use for those measures of the New Deal which restrict production for the purpose of making work and inflating purchasing power for the purpose of increasing private expenditure. The nation will need instead measures to increase the productivity of labor and to restrict civilian consumption, which competes with the needs of armaments. But by the same token, a nation which is seriously arming cannot be interested in the old Republican idea of unregulated and unregulated private enterprise. To prepare for war is to organize and direct industry and investment for the national purposes, and not to let them be managed for private profit.

Both parties will, therefore, find that their old principles and slogans have become obsolete, and that the task of organizing this nation in a world of armed totalitarian states will call for a rapid and a radical revolution and readaptation of their mental habits.

Army and Navy Take Gadgets Out of Planes

Licensing Plan Also Intended to Speed Up
Construction Plans

BY DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Aviation Editor
Los Angeles—Two major developments, one of them frankly borrowed from Europe, are going to do much toward speeding American air re-armament under the impetus of congressional appropriations running into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

One is airplane design simplification. The other is the appearance of licensing agreements permitting the construction of identical-type warplanes by factories in widely separated localities.

To borrow a term from a nationally-published California political campaign of 1934, the United States, launched suddenly upon an air defense project reminiscent of 1917, is preparing to turn out "production for use" warplanes.

Our military planes have been too fancy. Since 1934, when the wholesale cancellation of air mail contracts and the attendant attempt of the army to fly the mails showed the air corps to be deficient in both equipment and training, our planes have grown fancier—and costlier.

Costly Equipment
One gadget alone, an hydraulically-operated pilot's seat whose performance puts a barber's chair to shame, costs several hundred dollars. Flight and engine instruments, which in the manufacturing process are costly and time-consuming, cover the front of the cockpit and in some instances spill over on to its sides.

Miles of aluminum alloy conduits—known in the trade as "plumbing"—snake through the wings and fuselage.

At St. Louis recently a test pilot showed me the cockpit of an interceptor pursuit. The complexity of the instrument panel had been reduced fully a third. On the left side was a switch connected electrically to the trigger on the control stick. It was marked "1, 2, 3, volley."

"This is what we are coming to," said the pilot. "We need greater simplicity. A combat pilot doesn't even need a selector switch on his guns. Let him press the trigger and fire all four at the same time."

Change Their Views
West coast manufacturers are beginning to receive hints from both the army and navy that simplification of planes—and, therefore, of plane manufacture—would be welcome. The services are about ready to accept planes with electrical wiring running throughout the structure instead of being grouped in conduits where one bullet easily could wreck several units in the control system.

They are about ready to abandon expensive, pressurized hydraulic systems, actuated by buttons or switches, in favor of hand-operated air brakes and retractable landing gear, at least on the smaller warplanes.

At the Douglas plant in Santa Monica, the country's largest aircraft factory, parts manufacturers who is also a pilot and an engineer, told me the other day: "We are going to achieve quick production when the air corps specialists at Wright field in Dayton stop thinking up new gadgets to add to planes and begin eliminating about half of those already have."

Production by Nazis
Simplification has been the key to German warplane production. If our warplanes are too fancy, they may also be too fast. That is, for years we have been spending our energies and money obtaining high performance. The German "Stuka" dive bombers have a level-flight speed of only 220 miles an hour. They are light, single-engine planes.

We have not been satisfied with less than 300 miles an hour in bi-motor medium bombers.

The other aspect of an accelerated air re-armament drive, the licensing of one factory by another to increase production and spread employment, is under agreements obtained by Secretary Morgenthau. The treasury secretary announced the move May 23.

The west coast is giving an example of what is meant. The Douglas company has licensed the Boeing Aircraft company in Seattle to manufacture large numbers of two-engine, fast medium bombers for the British. Such licenses probably will be issued in increasing numbers as the manufacture of planes for our own armed forces gains momentum.

the force of the aggressor. We see great nations still gallantly fighting against aggression, encouraged by high hope of ultimate victory.

"That we are opposed to war is known not only to every American, but to every government in the world. We will not use our arms in a war of aggression; we will not send our men to take part in European wars."

"But, we will repel aggression against the United States or the western hemisphere. The people and their representatives in the congress know that the threats to our liberties, the threats to our security, the threats against our way of life, the threats to our institutions of religion, of democracy, and of international good faith, have increased in number and gravity from month to month, from week to week, and almost from day to day."

Mr. Roosevelt said it was because of the "rapid changes" in the world situation, the grave danger to democratic institutions, and also "because of the united will of the entire American people that I come to ask you for a further authorization of $4,848,171,957 for the national defense."

Nation Not "Weak"
Mr. Roosevelt then told congress: "Let no man in this country or anywhere else believe that because we in America still cherish freedom of religion, of speech, of assembly, of the press; that because we maintain our free democratic political institutions by which the nation after full discussion and debate chooses its representatives and leaders for itself—let no man here or elsewhere believe that we are weak."

He declared that "we, the free men and women of the United States" are determined "to be strong as well as free."

"The apologists for despotism and those who aid them by whispering defeatism or appeasement, assert that because we have not devoted our full energies to arms and to preparations for war that we are now incapable of defense," Mr. Roosevelt declared.

"I refute that imputation" — auditing committee for the coming year.

A daughter, Evelyn Elberta, was born Monday to Mr. and Mrs. Ed Conlon of Deer Creek. Mrs. Conlon was formerly Miss Doris McHugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike McHugh of this place.

Traffic Police Start Check on Cars, Trucks

Outagamie county traffic policemen yesterday began a series of checks on Highway 47 south of Black Creek, according to Captain Charles Steidl. Forty-four were found with defects and the drivers were given warning tickets. County police will check once each week in some part of the county during the next couple of months, Steidl said.

group, which also includes Russell Davenport, former managing editor of Fortune magazine, and Oren Root, Jr., New York lawyer, who were among the original Willkie boosters.

Representative Joseph Martin (R-Mass.), new national Republican chairman, said he expected to confer with Stassen and other members of the group tonight.

Chicago — (P) — Although Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) has announced he will not participate in a "stop-Roosevelt" movement at the Democratic national convention, his headquarters here remained open today to keep his candidacy alive in case President Roosevelt decides not to run for a third term.

"We assume the president is not a candidate," said J. Burke Clements of Helena, Mont., Wheeler's national campaign manager. "He has not said he was a candidate, and until he does we have the right to assume that he is not."

Clements agreed, however, that Wheeler's name would not be placed in nomination next week if that of President Roosevelt were before the convention.

added that he knew of no law to prevent that type of campaign.

Willkie said in response to questions that there had been no "telegraphic campaign" and added: "Gillette is a Democrat and is trying to help the Democrats win. As far as I am concerned they can investigate us forever. We do not want to conduct a campaign on such trivialities."

"A party which has to resort to such tactics as the New Deal is presently doing must indeed be nervous about the outcome of the election."

A large crowd, chanting "We Want Willkie," lined the fences at the municipal airport when the nominee and his wife arrived last night. Governor Ralph L. Carr, who flew from Denver to welcome his guests, told the crowd that Willkie "wanted to know if this was a paid gallery."

"This," Carr added, "is the voice of Colorado," and the crowd agreed with a lusty "Yes!"

Willkie told reporters he would make a number of "set speeches" during his campaign and would intersperse them with informal talks — mostly from the rear platform of a campaign train.

Valley Census Figures

From the head of Lake Winnebago to the choppy waters of Green bay the people should be more than gratified at population increases evidencing as they do the confidence of the people that when normalcy returns to America thriving conditions and the opportunities that go with them will be here at hand.

Some years ago a leading planner and engineer pointed at this Fox River Valley as one of America's oases that promised handsomely. He recited all the advantages. There is unusually fertile soil so the industries are backed by a strong agricultural group. There is waterpower. There is cheap water transportation for coal. There are great railroad transportation systems. And, very important, there are people who want to work and achieve and bring to their tasks the ingredient of intelligence which dignifies work apart from mere drudgery.

Many of the great cities throughout the country have lost heavily in population. Few have grown with the percentage increases evident in this valley. Washington has had a marvelous growth. It upped its population 57 per cent. But of course that is artificial and due to prevailing governmental policies.

Few who are familiar with booms care for them. The desirable thing is a steady, consistent and honest growth. A community must keep the industries, business and commerce that it has and acquire such others as it earns. In the acquiring of new ventures nothing is to be gained by any policy excepting that of candor. Subsidizing industries that cannot stand on their own feet or inviting soldiers of fortune to conduct some business by presenting it with substantial favors seldom gains anything of lasting consequence.

Let this valley therefore continue to build and expand, inviting every legitimate industry that it may sustain, and let its homes stretch farther into the agricultural section, never forgetting to preserve and construct those other institutions that have accompanied the best civilizations since time began.

Why Not Uncover the Great Pretense?

Members of the platform committee of the approaching Democratic convention are hard at work writing planks.

Some of these planks will be sincerely written. Too many of them will not.

In due course, if we are to repeat recent history, the candidate chosen by the convention will solemnly aver with a Hitler gesture that "I support this platform 100 per cent." One hundred per cent is quite a number of per cent.

Thus the scenery is staged for the fall campaign and the wool is carefully combed lest in pulling it over the voter's eyes it scratch and annoy. Along in October thousands of orators on platforms and at street corners will be assuring the public of the safety with which their party may be returned to power by pointing to the platform pledges and to the candidate's positive assurance "On my word of honor" to stand by through thick and thin, rain and shine. Just for good measure, a sort of baker's dozen, the platform will probably start out something like this if it is anything like a recent platform of the same party:

"A political platform is the most sacred document that could be written in a democracy. It consists of the calm and studied promise made by the candidates to the people. A failure to carry out its pledges is a breach of faith which should consign the party offending to obscurity."

It is pretty hard for the worker in the steel or paper mills or the farmer after hours carrying grain sacks to meet the sort of argument that can be piled up with this grinning but hidden skeleton being panned off as the clear quill and the honest goods.

There is the plainly written platform. There is the plainly stated pledge to support it by the candidate for president, say. And there is the added and bitter denunciation in advance of anyone who would make such a promise and violate it.

But what is the platform worth? What does our experience show it is worth? Is it worth any more than a recitation of the Lord's prayer at a convention of theists?

Keeping Congress in Session

Most of the people in this country want congress kept in session except for the necessary recesses due to the conventions. This is because most of the people in the country look upon congress as a brake or restraint upon the president.

But there are other good and sufficient reasons why congress should not go home, however hot and humid the national capital may be.

The House passed certain amendments to the Wagner Act but the senate shuttled them aside for the election. The senate passed a bill to prevent state employees paid from federal funds being used as a chain gang in the election. But the House hasn't acted upon it. Then there is the bill to terminate all purchases of foreign silver which was passed by the senate but thrown on the floor of the House by the claim that under the constitution this bill should have originated there. And beyond all this important legislation there is the Logan-Walter bill providing for a judicial review of bureau rulings. It was in April that the House passed this bill but the senate has not acted.

In all this proposed legislation there is a great deal of merit, and some of it may be even called indispensable. But every bit of it marks errors of the administration and how could the orators spellbind the people with the wizardry of the New Deal after such a retreat?

"The Bones of Napoleon"

The manner in which Herr Hitler's visit to the tomb of Napoleon was probably presented to the German people left them breathless over the magnificence of conquerors and their good fortune to be living under a peer if not a contemporary of the bloody Frenchman.

No doubt Hitler gazed at that black marble sarcophagus long and fixedly, staring back all through the generations until he almost whispered with the hero of Jena and Austerlitz who had ravaged a continent only to find a Waterloo.

But Herr Doctor Goebbels will never permit circulation in Germany of that new book entitled "Bones of Napoleon" since it is based upon the supposition that one of the many wild expeditions to free Napoleon from the British grasp at St. Helena succeeded and that the little corporal was actually brought to America and spent his declining years on the eastern shore of Maryland under the honorable name of Mr. Bertrand.

Few men, or women, are there who take a walk up the hangman's dock, to the electric chair or bow before the guillotine that are not afterwards presented as living quietly and unobtrusively in some serene fisherman's village gazing out at the moaning sea and visioning tremendous occurrences. It certainly would be contrary to Nazi philosophy to have it appear that the great Hitler, who never made a mistake, spend his valuable moments paying homage to some spurious dust.

The Curse of Idleness

Dave Smukler is a topnotch football player who delivered one of the greatest political addresses yet unearthed although it might surprise him to know it.

Smukler, it may be remembered, was the Philadelphia Eagles crashing full-back. Critics have been placing him alongside of Jim Thorpe and Ernie Nevers as one of the all-time greats. And the Detroit Lions have been doing their utmost to sign him up at pretty fancy pay since buying him from Philadelphia.

But Smukler has joined the army. He is getting just $21 a month plus his keep as a private in the rear line while he learns to keep step and follow automatically certain commands.

Smukler didn't join the army because he wanted to kill anyone nor that his patriotism, high though it be, was flowing over. He joined the army to get a steady job.

Steadiness of work to a husky 230 pounder in his twenty-sixth year means more than the money involved backed up as that is by buried Kentucky gold. Smukler could work about four months in the fall and receive enough to support him all year, in fact get more than ten times as much as Uncle Sam pays him for 12 months' attention to duty.

But Smukler wanted work, he couldn't bear to lie around two-thirds of the year eating off what he earned during the other fraction. He said that for the four years he has been in professional football he had been unable to find a job that would keep him busy, his muscle pliable, his fingers limber, his sweat pores open and his mind functioning.

One of the pick of the country, in the pink of physical condition, willing to do anything from shoveling clay to stoking a furnace has been driven into the army after a thorough and relentless search for a job.

Smukler represents that large fraction of the unemployed whose morale has become broken by the deadly policies of the present administration.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Washington—How firmly Roosevelt intends to protect New Deal gains for labor during the emergency period of national defense was illustrated in a private conversation he had with Admiral William Leahy, now retired from the navy and serving as governor of Puerto Rico.

Admiral Leahy is one of the most trusted defense advisers around the president. The two men are close personal friends, and when Leahy was chief of naval operations he virtually ran the navy department. Several weeks ago, therefore, Roosevelt called Leahy back from Puerto Rico and conferred with him about taking over the job of national defense coordinator.

Leahy was much interested, but said that if he was to succeed at this important job he wanted free rein to do two things. One was to increase hours of labor without necessarily increasing wages. In other words, the Wage-Hour act and the Walsh-Healy act, two of the hardest-fought New Deal labor reforms, were to be suspended.

Admiral Leahy pointed to the experience of the Blum government, which did not rearm for the reason that French labor insisted on continuing the 40-hour week and other management restrictions.

The admiral also referred to the fact that Hitler was paying virtual slave wages, working men all sorts of hours, and he made the point that no nation could compete with Hitler if it maintained too high a wage scale. It would bankrupt the United States, he said, and labor should be patriotic enough to contribute a half-day a week, or some additional extra hours toward national defense.

The president flatly opposed this. He said that his labor reforms had been attained only after a long struggle and they could not be surrendered. He also said that labor was always asked to sacrifice in emergencies, and that this time employers could do some of the sacrificing.

MILITARY DEADWOOD

The second point Admiral Leahy made was that if he became national defense coordinator he wanted the right to oust or transfer about half the admirals in the navy. He seemed to feel that the navy was loaded down with deadwood, and needed a thorough house-cleaning. He even named a few admirals whom he would include in that house-cleaning. Furthermore, Leahy voiced similar sentiments about some of the gone-to-seed officers in the war department.

The president, however, did not concur in this. He was definitely cool to the idea. He had several other conversations with Admiral Leahy but made no further mention of making him national defense coordinator. Finally he proposed:

"Bill, you go out to the Governor's conference and talk to them on national defense. And then I think you'd better go back to Puerto Rico. There's an important job to be done down there, and this situation seems to be getting along all right. If we need you, we'll send for you."

Since then Admiral Leahy has had various other conferences with Roosevelt on national defense, and continues to be one of his closest advisers. Though he has gone back to Puerto Rico, he will return to Washington again soon. But in regard to labor, his views do not prevail at the White House.

McNARY'S CAMPAIGN

Senator Charles McNary of Oregon knows just what kind of a campaign he is going to make as GOP candidate for vice president, and no one is going to make him operate differently. No back-slapper, baby-kisser or glad-hander, he has quietly but firmly decided that these practices are out. "I'll choose my own weapons," says McNary with a boyish smile.

The senator does not intend to make an extensive speaking campaign. He is going to leave that to the head of the ticket.

"It is unnecessary for me to explain where I stand on issues," McNary says. "I've got a 23-year public record."

McNary, one of the greatest political strategists of the country, plans to make only three or four platform speeches and several radio broadcasts during the entire campaign. In addition to his home town acceptance address in Salem, Ore., he also will speak in Omaha, Minneapolis, Detroit, one or two border-state metropolises and that is all.

The remainder of the time McNary will spend in Washington attending to his duties as minority leader of the senate.

Note—When McNary asked his 5-year-old daughter, Charlotte, what she thought of his vice presidential nomination, she replied, "I'll love you whatever you are, Daddy. And I love my pony, too."

SURPLUS DIPLOMATS

Henry Wallace's surplus crop problem has nothing on the current quandary of his colleague, Cordell Hull. For suddenly the secretary of state has been presented with a problem of surplus diplomats, which in its way is cluttering up the state department just as much as cotton, tobacco and corn are depressing the commodity markets.

Cause of Mr. Hull's surplus problem is Herr Hitler and the disappearances of European countries. Norway, Belgium, Denmark and Holland have ceased to exist, and Hitler has ordered all U. S. ministers and ambassadors in those areas to return home. This affects the following people:

Mrs. J. Borden ("Daisy") Harriman, minister to Norway and veteran Democratic politician, who became famous when Hitler invaded Scandinavia.

John Cudahy, ambassador to Belgium, scion of the meat packing family, and a political appointee who has turned into an excellent diplomat.

George Gordon, minister to the Netherlands, a career diplomat of long service.

Ray Atherton, minister to Denmark, who already has been brought to Washington and taken care of as chief of the European division.

In addition, Mr. Hull's surplus includes Hugh Wilson, former ambassador to Germany, who has been hanging around the state department ever since he was recalled not quite knowing what to do with himself; and Ambassador Joe Davies, a competent executive who has been given nothing to do since he returned from Russia and Belgium.

All of the newly "liquidated" diplomats must get out of German territory by July 15, according to the latest Nazi ultimatum, and Hull's advisers already are cogitating the question of how to keep them busy.

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—From this vantage point of time, the Republican convention at Philadelphia has lost none of its staggering qualities of a thunderbolt bursting from a clear sky.

Unaccustomed as I am to taking my national party conventions on hand and on foot, so to speak there were hours when I was lost in the lightning-like chain of events that swept a 48-day campaign into the limelight, almost wiped young Thomas E. Dewey off the convention map, and left mild-mannered Senator Taft gasping at the finish line without ever having gotten that second wind he was so positive would carry him to victory.

But scores of old-timers—politicians, news men and just observers—were no less flabbergasted than I. Time has settled the matter no more clearly.

It was not so much what happened (there have been other cases where dark horses have come down the home stretch far ahead of the favorites). It was the way it happened. And since a re-examination of what might have taken place may give some clues to the campaign ahead, here it is.

A Definite Movement

There are two versions, and I find strong adherents to both.

The first is that Wendell L. Willkie is the G.O.P. presidential candidate by popular demand and personal charm.

On the surface, there is much to support this. It was weeks ago that the hulking, good-humored, quick-witted utilities captain told me, without conceit or bombast, "There is a definite and far-reaching movement in this country to put business back into government, and because I believe what these people believe . . . and say so, I have become the spearhead of that movement."

Before the convention had started, Willkie had said he would be nominated on the sixth ballot. Later, he changed his prediction to the third, but in both instances, if any one appeared incredulous, Willkie merely reiterated that the disbelief wasn't aware of that "far-reaching movement."

Willkie arrived in Philadelphia with no entourage, without even a headquarters, without any visible organization. When his headquarters was established in rooms in inadequate for visitors, the place had an amateurish air. Far from being a well-oiled machine, run by a masterful executive, it was a melee in which Willkie was as much a part of the scene as volunteer greeters. He saw all comers, talked to everyone who called him, even answered telephones himself. When things slackened down, he went out button-holing delegates personally. When the voting was going on, he sat for hours in a crowded room to which any one was welcome, until it became too jammed for comfortable breathing.

A Well Laid Scheme

To this, a good many politicians say toeh and twaddle. They represent the second version. They say all that informality and helter-skelterishness was part of one of the best-laid schemes to blitzkrieg a convention that any man ever conceived. They say it had its roots in and was a refinement of the utilities fight against the government.

In the first place, from all over the country, they say, the delegates were deluged with a flood of telegrams . . . that these telegrams were inspired by last-minute telephone campaigns by business and utility leaders and planted Willkie workers.

They say that those cheering hundreds or thousands in the convention galleries who roared whenever a single vote was tossed to Willkie and filed the interim with the din of "We want Willkie!" were planted there on privately printed tickets.

They say that no landslide was ever more effectively planned in the "smoke-filled rooms" . . . that the larger deflections were the result of out-horse trading the opposition . . . that the first break came when Alf M. Landon threw his Kansas delegation over to Willkie and the final blow struck when Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg tossed in his support . . . and that these two and other breaks came from sessions in the smoke-filled rooms where it was decided to break the back of the Old Guard.

Well, that's how it was: either one of the most cleverly executed political schemes of our time, traveling behind a smoke-screen of good-natured and charming political inefficiency . . . or merely a revolt in the Republican ranks spurred by a popular demand for this amazing character who had risen like a meteor from (as one delegate put it) "those depths called the Democratic party."

Politicians have a way of saying things like that about the opposing party.

Lige Learned Fast But He's Not Through

Mullens, W. Va. (AP)—Lige Tate, who came to this country with his father from Italy in 1933, has received nothing but straight A's for six years of school work.

He was valedictorian of his high school class, and played football and basketball. He plans to work his way through a Kentucky college next.

Soul Marches on

Charleston, W. Va. (AP)—The Liberty, an old packet boat, was beached and stripped last spring, but her soul goes marching on. Her whistle is on the towboat Mildred, her pilot wheel now guides a ferry at Fullerton, Ky., and her engines power the Ohio river towboat Valley Belle.

"But, I Will Not Discuss It"

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—Biggest reason for the lack of action in the state Democratic party is the desire of Democratic leaders of Wisconsin to know where they stand with national party headquarters for the money they spend their money and their energies in the 1940 campaign. And that knowledge won't be available until after the Democratic national convention in Chicago.

When the makeup of the 1940 national ticket will be revealed. There is today only one candidate for state office on the Democratic ticket—Ray Cannon of Milwaukee, for governor—although the final date for the filing of nomination papers is but a scant three weeks distant.

The explanation for that seeming lethargy was given at the Green Bay state convention a few weeks ago, when several prominent Democrats who can be considered candidate timber under ordinary circumstances got up to decline convention endorsements on the ground that they had no assurance of coming state or any confidence that the Washington New Dealers this year would support Democrats rather than Progressives in state politics.

From Portage comes a revealing story showing the attitude of the four other Progressive candidates for governor toward Henry Gunderson of that city, who was first in the field with a disclosure of his ambitions.

Gunderson invited the four other contenders for the governorship who were visiting the Young Progressive convention in Portage to have breakfast with him last Sunday morning. He sent written invitations, but he had breakfast alone.

Loomis, Nelson and Stafford left town the previous evening, and Alfonsi, who stayed throughout the convention, declined the bid. Note: If Gunderson is nominated, don't be surprised if several of his primary opponents (Walter Graume of Wausau is still making the motions of a candidate) refuse to support him in the general election in November.

NO MEANING

One of the critics of the Frey investigation of the conservation department, and a defender of the department, digs up the information that Heil in directing Frey to investigate the conservation department's land deals is attacking at day morning the proposed land acquisition which he has recommended in his official capacity as governor.

Researcher Frey has condemned in the harshest terms the conservation department's proposed acquisition of Flambeau river lands now owned by a Rhineland paper company for the Elambeau state forest. Frey has maintained that the land is worthless, will be a state liability rather than an asset, and that the terms of the proposed trade were to the disadvantage of the state financially. Hugh Jackson, Madison outdoors editor, reveals in rebuttal that Heil as a member of the state planning board recommended the acquisition of the land in question as a desirable conservation policy.

BUT It is true that Heil is a member of the planning board, automatically because he is governor. But Jackson's revelation would have more meaning were it not for the fact that the planning board is constantly making recommendations to which the executive office pays not the slightest attention. In fact, had Heil had his way, the planning board would have been abolished last year. The fact that the board, which numbers all of the important state officers, recommends something that does not necessarily mean that it is speaking Heil's sentiments. It is doubtful that Heil even attends its meetings. Obviously he is not influenced by its suggestions.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

SIX POUNDS TOO MUCH

P. A. (personal appearance rather than P.H. (personal health)). I take it, is the motive which inspires the annual increase in request for advice on girth control during the vacation season.

One matron who obtained a copy of the two-bit booklet "Rules for Reducing" and followed the regimen given therein, reported that in the first week she reduced seven pounds, and she was feeling fine; she was astonished at the absence of the extreme hunger which had always before defeated her attempts to reduce.

I hated to throw cold water on the lady's rejoicing and enthusiasm, but I had to advise her that there must have been something out of the ordinary in her regimen or in her condition, for the normal reduction is and should be not over a pound a week, or even an average of two or three pounds a month.

Too rapid reduction is not necessarily dangerous in any case, provided it is not due to the use of harmful drugs or drastic cathartics or powerful diuretic gland extracts. But a woman, or a man either, who values P.A. should remember that a rapid reduction is likely to leave wrinkles and sags which are difficult to remove.

Gradual, moderate reduction, on the other hand, at no faster rate than the superficial flesh was acquired in the first place, involves no radical readjustment in the metabolism and gives time for the muscles, connective tissues and the skin itself to take up slack, so to speak, and keep fit and trim.

Sometimes I wish this reducing urge were not quite so seasonal. It seems so futile when some one writes in for a reducing diet, as he or she is planning a vacation next month and must reduce fifteen pounds. If you have fifteen pounds handicap to get rid of, you should begin your reduction regimen at least six months, or better a year before the time you expect to weigh in.

On the other hand, for the encouragement of many who adopt the physiological regimen laid down in "Rules for Reducing," it is well to remember that there is likely to be a reduction in measurements before the scales show any appreciable reduction in body weight. Combustion of fat, which is bulky, produces as one by-product water, which is not so bulky but is heavy, and this water is retained in the tissues until the metabolism becomes readjusted, and then in the course of a week or two, if you continue following the regimen, the water is excreted and the scales show loss of body weight.

In any reduction plan or indeed any plan to prevent accumulation of slacker flesh, a reasonable amount of daily exercise is absolutely essential. Not that exercise should be considered a factor in reducing, but merely to maintain good physical tone, to take up slack to prevent flabbiness and sagging.

New London to Exceed Quota in Red Cross Drive

Collections Reach $190 With Only Part Of Canvass Completed

New London—With $190 already collected and 15 out of 25 districts not yet reported from, New London's Red Cross War Relief fund drive points to greater success than anticipated, according to Attorney Joel Nemschoff, campaign chairman, considering the unfavorable conditions under which it was launched.

Substantial contributions are coming in steadily despite the unemployment of 300 local workmen during the last two weeks because of a major industrial strike. The largest single effort has been reported by employees of the Edison Wood Products plant who collectively donated $42.05. Individual contributions ranged from 25 cents upward. Employees of the Borden Milk Products plant, instead of turning in to the main office the $35.75 which they pooled in a recent campaign, deposited the amount with the New London chapter to help swell the local war fund chest. Because of the strike, employees of the American Plywood corporation have been unable yet to respond to the appeal.

Reach Every Home
Canvassing by volunteer solicitors will continue until every home has been visited and every person contacted, according to Chairman Nemschoff. Persons missed by canvassers who wish to do their part may mail or give their contribution to Attorney Nemschoff, Attorney Francis A. Werner, Chief of Police Harry D. Macklin or O. K. Ziebur, cashier at the First State bank.

New London's original quota was set at $220 but all restrictions as to amount have been lifted since the national campaign was launched.

GOP Made Wise Move in Naming Martin Manager

Choice Welds Together Political Elements Behind Wendell Willkie

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — Wendell Willkie's choice of Representative Martin as national campaign manager is something more than the selection of an administrator with experience. It is recognition of the importance of welding together the political elements of the party behind a candidate who has had no political background and is a relative newcomer in the ranks of Republicanism itself.

Lawrence

The fact that "Joe" Martin, as he is affectionately called by Democrats and Republicans in congress, agreed to accept the chairmanship of the campaign is a sign that he considered the chances of a Republican victory to be better than even. After all Mr. Martin is busy as minority leader of the house and he could have sidestepped the invitation. But he didn't. This means that the party workers will have at the helm a man who understands the requirements of practical politics.

Unless someone is at the head of a campaign in whom the party leaders and workers have confidence, there is apathy and often confusion. It was particularly important for Wendell Willkie to persuade Joe Martin to take the job for now the rank and file will pitch in behind him with the knowledge that the customary routine of party management with its subsequent recognition of merit among the deserving may be forthcoming.

In the personality of Jim Farley the Democrats have had a great campaign manager. Representative Martin is of the same type. He commands the respect of political leaders everywhere and he has a degree of popularity scarcely equalled before by any Republican manager of a campaign.

Known in Politics

Everybody, moreover, in politics knows Joe Martin. He increased his popularity at the Philadelphia convention and made the acquaintance there of many of the leaders of the various state delegations who now will be responsible for pivotal state campaigns.

The selection of Mr. Martin cements the ties between Wendell Willkie and Alf Landon of Kansas whose helpfulness in the balloting in Philadelphia will not soon be forgotten by the nominee. Retention of the services of John Hamilton as executive director was a wise move from a practical standpoint because he has become familiar with the details of the party machinery and he has in his mind the details of the 1936 campaign budget and its expenditure and should be invaluable in preventing the recurrence of those mistakes which always happen when a new national chairman is put in charge.

Mr. Hamilton has been the subject of much controversy. He probably damaged his cause a bit because of his early participation in the factional rows of the party, especially in Kansas where there is supposed to have been a rivalry between himself and Alf Landon. But apart from these purely political happenings, John Hamilton has done yeoman service for his party in cleaning up the deficit and in organizing a national headquarters which can go to work immediately for the ticket.

In previous years much of the organization work had to be done in the midst of a short campaign. It was John Raskob who after the Smith defeat in 1932 developed the idea of a permanent headquarters for the Democrats. Now the Republicans have copied the Raskob plan, and it is the existence of a going concern at national headquarters which makes possible the introduction of a new national chairman without disrupting the existing machinery which will be managed by Mr. Hamilton. The idea of a permanent staff for a national party means continuity and an avoidance of many mistakes and pitfalls during a campaign.

Political Morale

It is not so much however, the detailed executive direction of the campaign that required a new national chairman, but the spirit and political morale of a party which chose as its candidate a man who had only recently been a Democrat. By putting a seasoned warrior like Joe Martin in command, the older Republicans will cease talking about Wendell Willkie's vote for Roosevelt in 1932 as a Republican liability and will start discussing it as an asset. Already there are rumblings in the south where Democrats are organizing clubs for Willkie with the argument that the south now can support a Democrat for the presidency on the Republican ticket for the first time since the war between the states.

Unquestionably if the president runs for a third term, there will be many Democrats in the south who will cease their political consciences by choosing two precedents—voting the regular Democratic ticket, thus breaking the third term tradition or voting for a Republican on the ground that he believes in the principles of the Democratic party as enunciated in its national platform of 1932.

Mail Goes Through

Los Angeles — Kindness to dogs is reducing the bites inflicted on mail carriers, says Homer Hobbs, chairman of the mailmen's committee on the dog problem. So far this year only 15 mailmen have been bitten, far below the rate for previous years.

Hobbs said one carrier had made friends with a vicious dog by bringing it a bone. Investigation showed that the dog's aversion to mail carriers dated from the time a postman had sprayed it with an ammonia gun.

Clarksburg, W. Va. — After 47 years as a first-grade teacher, Mrs. Clara Conrad decided to retire. She never taught in any other grade.

ONE MAN'S OPINION: One glaring fault of theatre operators who run double features is their failure to recognize that 8:15 to 8:30 is the STAND-ARIZED SHOW HOUR. That's the hour—proved through centuries—at which the public likes to arrive at the theatre. Therefore, it's the hour at which the BETTER film on a dual bill should start, for benefit of those who don't care to sit through the supporting picture.

LAUGH OF THE WEEK: Charles Boyer's story about the beautiful French actress who was a fellow passenger on his most recent Atlantic crossing. The sea was very rough, and the lady was a poor sailor. As she huddled, wan and miserable, in her deck chair one morning, the steward spied her. "Pardon," he beamed cheerily, "but has made-moiselle had breakfast?" The sufferer looked up grimly. "Mademoiselle," said she, "has not had breakfast. On the contrary, m'sieu."

PREVIEW NIGHTS: Pic of the week: "Maryland," a horsey romance that comes home a winner. "The Man Who Talked Too Much" talked too much. . . . "Scatterbrain" is a credit to the brains that devised it. Don't be

Gray Fox Prefers Domestic Comfort to Life in Forest

Bear Mountain, N. Y.—(P)—A gray fox, exhibited in a pen for three years at the Trailside museum, has his freedom now but won't take it.

Set loose three weeks ago along with three red foxes, the gray wouldn't leave and had to be pushed out.

Now he has a lair in the museum garden, from which he emerges regularly at feeding time and gets a handout.

NO SALE

Dallas—(P)—A little Negro boy stood in the foyer of one of Dallas' largest hotels. He clutched a slightly soiled handful of Cane Jasmine.

"Is this yere an convention, or what?" he asked mournfully. "It looks like a convention, but it don't buy like no convention. They all says they got plenty of flowers themselves."

It was a convention all right—the Texas State Florists association.

HERO

Fairbanks, Alaska—(P)—Strike off a medal for Whiskers, a little black dog owned by the Sherman Noyes family.

Their 5-year-old daughter, Yuer-dre, was left at a cabin on the Yukon while the mother and friends went out on a boat.

Whiskers' barking soon attracted their attention. They saw, with or-ror, Dierdre attempting to play with a large bear.

Whiskers, however, barked and leaped at the bear's flanks and so distracted it that it finally shuffled off into the brush, leaving the girl unharmed.

A. A. U. W. to Aid Refugees

A cable from the British Federation of University Women asking the American Association of University Women to take care of the children of its members for the duration of the war has resulted in a nation-wide project for the placement of these children under the auspices of the A.A.U.W. Cooperating in the movement is the Appleton branch of the organization, whose president, Miss Alice Diderich, will appoint a local committee to take charge of the work.

The children will be between the ages of 5 and 16. They will be brought in as speedily as possible under the British quota.

National headquarters of the A.A.U.W. has reminded volunteers that "for the duration" might mean a long time, and that affidavits of support meant ability to care for a child until it reaches maturity.

Nevertheless the project is receiving excellent support. The Detroit branch of the association has already telegraphed an offer of homes to 22 children, and a little branch of only 12 members in Iowa arranged to take an English child, who would live with the president of the branch, and receive support from the entire group.

In conducting the project the A.A.U.W. is affiliated with the United States Committee to Care for European children.

Free Textbooks Next Term At Clintonville High School

Clintonville—Reuben Lendved was elected clerk of the Clintonville board of education for three years at the annual school election Monday. He succeeds F. A. Spearbraker, who held the office of clerk for the last 12 years. Because of his duties as mayor of the city, Mr. Spearbraker did not seek reelection. Dr. J. H. Murphy and G. A. Jesse were re-elected to two-year terms as board members. None of the officers had opposition and only 108 votes were cast.

At the annual meeting of Clintonville District No. 1 Monday evening at the high school auditorium, it was voted to raise the sum of $40,000 by taxation for school purposes. Other sources of income are tuition fees, federal, state and county aid. Total expenses for operating the public schools for the 1940-41 term are expected to be $69,885.

Because of the lack of space in both the high school and grade buildings, it was voted to again use the Masonic temple, which is located only one block away. The kindergarten is housed on the first floor of the building and the manual arts department in the basement.

An important change for this year will be the furnishing of free textbooks for the high school. This is being done because most of the surrounding schools, Shawano, New London and Waupaca, have adopted the plan. The initial cost of purchasing a complete set of textbooks for the high school will be from $1,500 to $2,000, according to Superintendent Harley J. Powell.

New Teacher Hired

An additional teacher will be hired this year because of the in-usually large number of pupils wishing to take the home economics course. According to a preliminary registration last spring, it was found that about 150 girls desired to enroll for this course. This is a larger number than could be taught by one instructor. Miss Marion Heikel, who taught here last year, will be assisted by Miss Doris Stover of Elmhurst, Ill., a graduate of Stout Institute, Menomonie, Wis.

Instead of the $2.75 charge for an activities ticket for the year, there will be a $2.50 registration fee for all students wishing to enroll at Clintonville High school. This charge entitles the boy or girl to participate in all high school activities and attend all programs put on by the school. A $1 deposit will be required for possible damage to books or other school property. This will be returned at the end of the course or when the pupil permanently withdraws from school.

The salaries of the various board members also were changed at the school meeting. Upon the suggestion of Max Stueg, school treasurer, the salaries of all board members were voted to remain unchanged; $30 per year, or $210 for the entire board. This figure remains the same as heretofore when the clerk was paid $80, the treasurer $30 and the remaining five board members $24 each. It was pointed out that in recent years most of the work formerly done by the clerk is being taken over by the superintendent's office.

Floyd Hurley, chairman of the meeting, reappointed John Tanty, Clarence Zachow and S. H. Sanford to the auditing committee.

Consider Night Classes

There was considerable discussion at the meeting as to the advisability of starting night classes for young people who have finished their school career, many of whom are unemployed. It was suggested that Superintendent Powell and the school board get in touch with Herb Heigl, head of the vocational school at Appleton, to ascertain whether instructors could be sent to Clintonville to conduct such classes. The district voted to give the board of education full authority to use the building and equipment if some plan can be arranged.

Mr. Spearbraker, the retiring clerk, was given a vote of thanks for his 12 years of service on the board of education. He responded with a short talk and the newly-elected clerk, Mr. Lendved, also made a few remarks expressing his appreciation to the voters and asking their cooperation.

There will be only three changes in the faculty of the grades and high school for the ensuing school year. They are Miss Stover, home economics and science; Harriet Foy, Wauwatosa, art, and Mary Swanton, Madison, vocal music. Miss Foy, a graduate of Milwaukee State Teachers college, succeeds Jane Backus, and Miss Swanton, who was graduated from the University of Wisconsin, will succeed Edith M. Gray. Both Miss Backus and Miss Gray resigned because they were to be married this summer. Mr. Powell will begin his fourth year as superintendent and all other teachers are returning to their respective positions.

The circulation department of the Appleton Post-Crescent is represented in Clintonville by James Bohr, 46 Main street. Orders for subscriptions may be left with him. Subscribers missed by carriers should call Mr. Bohr, telephone 557L, before 7 p. m.

School Board to Ask Council for 2-Room Building

Crowding at Franklin Cited; Estimate Cost Of Project at $8,300

The board of education last night voted to ask the city council for funds to erect a 2-room, 1-story building to relieve the congestion in Franklin school.

The action followed a discussion among board members and a committee representing Franklin school parents. The new building would be constructed on the Franklin school property and would be heated by the school system. It probably would be used for kindergarten students.

The board and the visiting committee looked over plans for the structure, the cost of which has been estimated at about $8,300.

Tuition costs for out-of-city children attending Appleton public schools were boosted by the board at its session in Morgan school. The resolution authorizing the increase, which is retroactive to September of 1939, states that "in compliance with the new state law," the tuition for grade school students living out of the city shall be raised from $44 to $71.50 yearly and for high school pupils from $72 to $107. For kindergarten students residing outside the city limits, the tuition is half the grade school figure or $55.75.

New Law
The action to raise the tuition board members said, was in step with the new state tuition law which allows cities to figure in operating and maintenance expenses and capital outlay in estimating the cost of educating students. Heretofore, only instruction expenses were allowable. It was stated that the new figures represent the exact annual cost to the city of instructing grade and high school pupils.

The resolution to jump tuition rates came after comparatively little discussion, although some members of the board speculated as to whether it would be more advisable to make a smaller increase this year and another next year. It was suggested that the grade school rate, for example, be boosted from $44 to $60 this year and then to the higher figure a year hence, but the board finally decided that tuition figured on exact cost to the city under the new law should be ordered. The decision to go to the city council for funds to erect the 2-room structure at Franklin school (which will be a separate, frame building and not an addition) was the climax of considerable study and discussion over the growing enrollment at that school. A committee representing the Franklin school parents appeared before the board several months ago and submitted a survey showing the expansion in school population in that area.

President Seymour Gmeiner of the board, who was reelected at last night's meeting, appointed Emory Greunke, Homer H. Benton, Dr. George T. Hegner and Superintendent Ben J. Rohan to appear before the finance committee of the council Friday and present the proposals for the building on the Franklin school grounds.

Officers Reelected
Other officers of the board, reelected last night are John Wood, vice president, and Mrs. Myra E. Hagen, secretary. Mrs. E. W. St. Clair, elected to the board last spring, took office last evening.

What effect the increase in tuition will have on the number of Grand Chute students was a subject of conjecture at the meeting. Superintendent Rohan showed that there are 209 Grand Chute grade school tuition students attending Appleton public schools. The breakdown is as follows: Jefferson 4; Washington 106; Columbus 25; Morgan 54; Franklin 19; Roosevelt 1. Tuition received by the city from school district No. 1 of Grand Chute during 1938-39 was $5,880.76. This was for children through the sixth grade.

The Ideal Coal and Supply company was low bidder among the coal bids submitted for the public schools. The company bid $6.75 for stoker screenings, $8.04 for Elkhorn egg, $10.50 for Buckwheat, and $10.50 for Pocahontas egg. Fifteen bids were received.

The board awarded the following summer painting jobs at schools: Edison, $148.10; Columbus, $148.10; Washington, $148.10; Franklin, $148.10; Roosevelt, $148.10; McKinley, $148.10; Kranszuch, $148.10; Nehls, $148.10. Ed Ingalls was awarded the contract for painting flag poles.

The board accepted the resignation of Miss Carol Anderson, physical education instructor at the high school. It approved the appointment of John C. Heckenman as janitor at Richmond school.

Johns Will Not Run for Senate

Congressman of 8th District Decides to Seek Reelection

Washington—Congressman Joshua L. Johns will not be a candidate for the senate, according to a statement issued by his office this week, but he will be a candidate for return to congress on the Republican ticket.

"I shall not be a candidate for the United States senate," Johns said, "although I have received hundreds of letters and personal requests. I deeply appreciate this confidence, but feel that my first duty is to my district."

"With conditions in this country as they are, no matter what my personal desires might be, I feel that it is my duty to return to congress if the people of the district so desire. Congress must and will remain in session and for that reason I must remain in Washington. Any campaign which might be necessary will have to depend on my loyal citizens back home. I shall run on my record plus the experience gained. I have always tried to do what I thought best for my district, my state and the nation and it will be for the voters to determine whether my judgment on these questions has met with their approval."

U. S. Needs New Language of Courtesy, Lew Saret Says

BY RUSSELL LANDSTROM
Chicago—(AP)—American speech, in the judgment of poet-teacher Lew Saret, needs a new way of saying "thank you," "please" and "much obliged."

The usual words of politeness and gratitude, he says, fall far short of what they sought to express, and hardly ever have the ring of sincerity.

"It is strange," he commented, "that in a department of speech where one might reasonably expect a superior kind of expressiveness, poverty of imagination and banality of feeling actually prevail. The language of courtesy should be free from clichés, and have a special kind of beauty growing out of simplicity, spontaneity and earnestness. Instead, we have for the most part a collection of stiff and insincere words."

"Thanks," "thank you" and "thanks to you" are not expressive enough. "Appreciation" is too polysyllabic; it doesn't mean a thing. "Much obliged" is a vulgarism.

"The phrase, 'I am grateful to you' comes closer to meeting the requirements than any other form. If I had to fall back upon a single form, I think it would be that one, because it is dignified and meaningful. 'It warms my heart' is good, but it is somewhat literary and self-conscious."

"What would be acceptable in place of 'please'?" "Well, one might suggest the longer forms, 'Will you be kind enough to do such and such?' and 'Would you be considerate enough?' these aren't ideal substitutes, but I think they would be better than 'please.'"

Badly as a new terminology of polite intercourse was needed, Saret said, any attempt to hasten a change by arbitrary methods would end in self-consciousness and artificiality.

He suggested that each person could help to bring about an improvement by editing his own conversation.

Oppose Plan to Open Stores on Friday Nights

Chamber of Commerce Committee in Favor Of Present System

A negative report on the advisability of keeping Appleton stores open Friday evenings, instead of Saturday was given this morning as the retail division of Appleton Chamber of Commerce met. The committee which had been investigating the possible change, adopted by several Wisconsin cities, was composed of Wayne R. Jones, Clark T. Teel and W. D. Kaulum.

A committee vote was taken on changing banking hours to from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m., for the present 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. setup, with the change losing, 8 to 5. A referendum of business places will be taken regarding this move.

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., explained the city's new solicitations ordinance, followed by discussion of how merchants could cooperate to make the measure effective. The mayor also explained the new parking ordinance. Retailers are much in favor of this change, it was brought out.

A committee, composed of Wayne R. Jones, chairman, Henry Williamson, Royall LaRose and Ray H. Eichelberger, was named to plan for the next dollar day in August. Eichelberger, retail committee head, explained the Red Cross drive and asked that retailers assist to bring it to a successful end.

The cooking school committee told of arrangements being made to work out a new plan for the school, in cooperation with the Appleton Post-Crescent.

Kaukauna Man Files Nomination Papers

Arthur Hoolihan, Kaukauna, is the first candidate in the county to file his nomination papers at the office of the county clerk. Hoolihan is a candidate for the assembly from the Second district. He will run on the Progressive ticket.

It would seem to be no one's fault there's still some snow around, but Laubs feels inclined to blame the street department for these evil years. The department spreads sand and cinders on intersections, and this material finds its way into the ravine when the loads of snow are dumped. As the snow melts the material sinks with it, and gradually forms a top layer which insulates the snow only too well, Laubs explained.

Pleads Not Guilty To Bad Check Charge

O. H. Christianson, rural route, Navarino, pleaded not guilty of passing a worthless check when he was arraigned in municipal court before Acting Municipal Judge Fred V. Heinemann this morning. The case was set for July 18 and Christianson released under bond of $500. He is charged with passing a $200 check at a Seymour bank.

Will Open Bids

Public grounds and buildings committee will meet at 7:30 Friday evening. Bids on a heat control system for the city hall will be opened.

U. S. Applies Science to the Indian Way of Making Rubber

Salinas, Calif.—(AP)—If war cuts off his supply of rubber from the East Indies, Uncle Sam probably will turn his attention to a little shrub of the southwestern deserts known as guayule.

For generations, Indian children have been chewing on guayule to extract its rubber and make rubber balls. Commercial production has been going on since 1906 and an estimated 200,000,000 pounds has been sold to tire manufacturers.

Three guayule mills in Mexico operate on wild bushes, gathered by native labor, but here at Salinas the situation is being attacked with scientific, mechanized farming.

The firm that is doing it is American Rubber Producers, Inc., a subsidiary of the big Continental Rubber company of New York.

American went into action in the 1920's when rubber was selling at 40 cents a pound. Prices crashed to 3 cents a pound, and only gradually have they climbed back to around 20 cents, but the company continued its experiments.

Today, according to Dr. W. B. McCallum, botanist in charge, guayule has been pretty well tamed and civilized. Its rubber content has been increased, mechanical cultivators have been designed to handle the crop and the milling operation perfected so that the final product is identified with tree rubber imported from the tropics. Guayule does not produce a "rubber substitute," it yields real rubber.

Today there are about 900 acres in guayule here, aside from the nursery where seedlings are grown for transplanting in the field. The shrub grows slowly and at maturity is only knee high. Harvested at the age of four years, it yields an average of 1,800 pounds of rubber an acre, while plants that have been left in the ground ten years have yielded at the rate of 3,400 pounds an acre.

Farmers Shy at Gamble
The entire plant is plowed up, pulverized in a pebble mill in water, and the rubber drawn off when it floats. Cost of the finished product locally is given at 16 1/2 cents a pound.

Files of Fred S. McCargar, secretary of the Salinas Chamber of Commerce, contain much correspondence with congressmen and cabinet officers regarding the possibility of the United States becoming self-sufficient as to rubber. Italy has experimented with guayule and has called Dr. McCallum to its aid several times.

A native of Mexico and Texas, the guayule shrubs requires about 10 inches of rainfall annually and a dry, dormant summer.

"Bush rubber can be produced in this country at a profit at present prices, but remember it takes four years to mature," McCargar says. "The American farmer hates to take a chance on the price four years hence."

He advocates government assistance for farmers willing to put in the slow-growing guayule.

Five to Dig for Snow Monday; Laubs Admits They'll Find It

Most of Appleton cares little for temperatures above the 80 mark, but each year signs of a hot day bring a smile to the face of A. W. Laubs as he enters his real estate office at 349 W. College avenue. For in warm weather the snow filled ravine across the street, almost opposite his office, steadily loses that winter product, and various persons who have waged July will still see snow there begin to squirm.

This year, with a "sucker list" of five, Mr. Laubs isn't smiling so much. For the fourth time in 21 years it looks certain the shovelers will find their snow when they attack a 20-foot high pile.

Monday morning. Those who will be a dollar apiece richer are Frank DeWall, Vernon Neumann, John Milbourn, Glenn Arthur and Joseph Brouillard.

Laubs prophesies came true without fail every year until 1928. This summer culminates a run of bad luck, as in 1938 and 1939 snow remained. The date used to be July 1, is now July 15, and Mr. Laubs says next year August 1 is the earliest day he cares to take a chance on.

"The camels were killed when the roof caved in on them," said Goebel. "The most pitiful sight of all was the tigers running back and forth in their cages, their coats on fire. We managed to get close enough, in spite of the heat, to shoot two of them, but we didn't have a chance to put the others out of their misery."

Remodeling, Garage Permits are Issued
Leonard Ney, 1309 W. College avenue, has received a building permit to remodel his residence at an estimated cost of $400. Ernest Ferg, 311 S. Walter avenue, will build a double garage, 18 feet by 18, at a cost of approximately $150, according to another permit issued.

Middle West Has 1-Day Heat Wave, 89 Here at Noon
Today's heat wave is unlikely to last, with cooler weather predicted for Thursday, according to the Milwaukee weather bureau. A 1-day wave hit the middle west today, with a shower area backed by cool air expected to cover virtually all north central states by tomorrow night. G. E. Dunn, Chicago forecaster, reported, Appleton joined in the wave, with the rising thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building showing a mark of 89 at noon. Local showers are predicted for the state tonight.

According to records of the power plant at Wisconsin Michigan Power company maximum and minimum temperatures for the 24-hour period preceding 9 o'clock this morning were 84 at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and 64 at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Highest and lowest marks in the nation during the last 24 hours were at Amarillo, Texas, with 106 and Yellowstone and Oakland, with 51.

Contractor Seeks Treasure Ship in Field in Nebraska
Blair, Neb.—(AP)—A treasure ship buried in a wheatfield may sound screwy to the world at large, but it makes good sense to Frank P. Blair, marine salvage contractor.

Blair is preparing to dig up the field to find the ship and a cargo valued between $50,000 and $800,000.

The ship was the Missouri river packet Bertrand, which sank in 1865 with a valuable cargo of mercury and, some say, a large quantity of whisky.

The Bertrand was taking the mercury to Montana mining areas when it struck a snag in the treacherous Missouri and sank within five minutes.

Passengers and crew escaped and walked to De Soto, then a booming river village, now a ghost town. Shifting river sand and silt covered the wreckage quickly. As time passed, the channel twisted away to another bed.

The site of the packet's grave has been sought vainly ever since. One of the searchers has been Blair. Aided by pioneers' stories, he has narrowed the hunt down to this one wheatfield. There, by using a magnetic balancing apparatus, he hopes to uncover the treasure.

Beauty and You

FLATTERING SUITS—A slightly flared skirt which is detachable is flattering to thickening thighs (a), and the soft roll cuff minimizes the full bosom held high through cunnie up-lift pockets. For the slim-waisted, full-bosomed figure, Madame Adrienne suggests soft strap bows and snug diaphragm fitting as illustrated in (b). The older woman takes great joy in the half-bolero suit which also has a detachable skirt of flattering length.

Bosoms and thighs are the figure problems when it comes to buying a bathing suit. Some women are too heavy and others are far too thin. Many women have reached the conclusion that it is worth getting suits custom made for after all, they reveal figure flaws more than evening gowns! One also wishes ease while swimming and while tanning about. Nothing can be more distressing than a bathing suit which rides up or which persists in revealing part of one's bosom.

I asked Madame Adrienne, bathing suit stylist for a leading New York department store, to give me a few pointers to pass on to you. She came right to bat by saying, "A bathing suit is only as flattering as its fit! Even the most beautiful figure loses beauty if the suit it wears has unsuitable lines." One of her pet peeves, she says, is a suit cut so short that leg flesh bulges, or part of the buttocks are revealed. That's one of my pet peeves too, and it should be one of yours!

To Flatter Bosoms
Madame Adrienne pays much attention to the brassiere section. She feels a bathing suit should provide a good firm uplift, whether the bust is very tiny or very full. With cunning dressmaker details she flatters all types.

For the full bust, or pendulum bust, she provides a deep snugly fitting uplift pocket and then softens the line by putting a soft roll cuff across the top of the bodice. Or she places a large bow of the material at the base of each shoulder strap and allows it to fall gracefully over the breast which minimizes the fullness.

Another little trick which slenderizes the very heavy bosom of the older woman is by use of a half-bolero sewed into the side seams. This does much to ease the self-consciousness of older women when they don a swim suit!

Madame Adrienne does not believe that halter necks provide sufficient support for heavy, relaxed pectoral muscles. To achieve the look of firm youth the brassiere of a suit should be tied or fastened in back as high as a regular brassiere. But to satisfy sun worshipers she cuts the suit low at the waist in back, so by lying face down on the beach, a woman may simply unfasten the brassiere and get sun on her entire back clear to the end of her spine. Obviously the girl or woman with a thick thigh cannot wear as short a suit as the girl with slim thighs. Snugly fitting trunks of proper length (considering one's weight and height) are excellent to swim in, but this designer feels all figures are flattered when out of the water by wearing a slightly flaring skirt which may be buttoned over the trunks.

The middle section of a suit should fit superbly so there will be no wrinkling of excess material, or material wrongly draped. Full-bosomed, small-waisted figures have this detail to consider.

A dark suit, like a dark dress, is more slimming than a light color. It may be lightened by details on the bodice in a contrasting shade. White is always charming, especially on a brunette, if your figure is not too large. Ice blue and rich forest green should be a redhead's or blond's choice. Yellow and tan tend to give a muddy look to one's skin unless you bronze very deeply. Madame Adrienne's favorite of all shades is a rich cocoa, particularly flattering to blondes who have soft brown eyes!

THE HOME GARDENER

by EDWIN H. PERKINS

Geraniums and other house plants should now be repotted in preparation for their indoor use this winter. It is good practice to knock the plant from the pot and scrub the old pots thoroughly before filling with fresh soil. This prevents carrying over mold and other plant diseases.

Since the plants will be required to stay in one container for a long time, it is worthwhile to prepare good soil for the plants. Standard soil mixture for such use consists of one part well decayed manure and two parts fresh garden loam. Humus can be substituted for the manure, in which case it will be necessary to use one-half pound of a good commercial fertilizer to every bushel of prepared soil.

When repotting, avoid the common mistake of overpotting. This mistake comes about in moving a small plant from, say, a two-inch pot into a five-inch pot. So large a quantity of soil for a small plant causes the soil to become sour from excess unused soil and moisture. Confine the repotting to the use of the next larger size pot. A plant

Jump Raise Called for Slam Bid

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: Along with many of our friends, we try to play Culbertson bridge in our little group. You will notice I say we try to play, as some of us have been missing a number of slams lately. So we would like a little advice from your column.

"The following hand was played in a recent match in which total points counted.

"West, dealer.

"Both sides vulnerable.

"The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 spade	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
8 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

"East-West, using Culbertson and 4-5 no trump conventions, have been rather successful in bidding games, but seem to flounder on some slam contracts.

"West contended that using the 4-5 no trump convention in this deal would tell him nothing, inasmuch as it was East's spade strength that he wanted to find out about.

He was afraid that East had something like four spades to the jack, with considerable strength outside.

"East felt that his jump in spades and subsequent bid of hearts should have been enough for West to go to slam. East himself could not place any of the aces. West tried to impress East via the five spade bid that he wanted an additional trick in spades and, if East had it, to bid a slam. East, however, was afraid that the opponents might lay down two aces. What is the answer?"

"E. G. New Jersey."

I am afraid West does not appreciate the great importance of holding four aces when partner makes a strong raise. The moment East raised the opening spade bid to three, West should have resolved on a slam contract, and the only question to determine was whether said slam should be of the small or grand variety. The mere fact that East, who could hold no ace, had the strength for a double raise was good and sufficient reason for expecting him to supply at least three and possibly all four of the missing kings. It was possible but unlikely that his spade support was no better than J-10-x-x, but even this should not have deterred West from reaching a slam, since in that case East would have to have greater outside strength. The first two rounds of bidding were excellent, but there was no reason for West to pass up the chance to show his 150 aces. The entire bidding sequence should have been:

WEST	EAST
1 spade	3 spades
4 clubs	4 hearts
4 no trump	5 clubs
5 no trump	6 spades
Pass	Pass

The four no trump bid, followed by five no trump after East's sign-off, would show 150 aces. With this knowledge it will be observed that if East had held the club king instead of the queen he would have been justified in jumping all the way to seven spades. With his actual holding the small slam bid would be called for.

Pests live during July, August and September. Rotenone sulphur is a good dust for late plant diseases and insects. The rotenone will take care of the insects and the sulphur will take care of mildew, rust and similar diseases of your flowers.

Small hot rice croquettes served with hot tomato sauce make a very satisfying main course for luncheon or supper.

When you use mayonnaise or salad dressing on sandwiches see that it is quite thick, so it will not run over the edges of the bread. Butter both slices of bread to seal it so that the filling or relish won't soak in.

To vary the flavor of stuffings for meats, fish or fowl, add about a third of a cup of ground sausage for each two cups of bread in the stuffing.

Wife Can Best Help Husband By Bringing Him Happiness

BY DOROTHY DIX

A young girl who is going to be married asks how she can best help her husband. Well, there are just as many different ways of helping a husband as there are different types of husbands. What's one man's meat is another man's poison, and the treatment that may put pep into one husband's soul and make him reach for the stars may make another husband sit down on the do-nothing stool and let Grandma do it. Sometimes a wife lays the foundations of her husband's fortune with her penny-pinching, and sometimes a man has to hustle so hard to pay an extravagant wife's bills that it turns him into a go-getter. It all depends. Speaking by and large, however, the best way in which a wife can help her husband is by making him happy. This is the old recipe that Grandma used when she was booting Grandma up the ladder, but it still works. You see misery is a depressant, whereas happiness is a stimulant. It is only when we are feeling good that we want to go out and do things. When we are disgruntled and life leaves a dark brown taste in our mouths, all we want to do is to slump down and pity ourselves.

Dorothy Dix

Besides this, there are many other reasons why a happy marriage is a first aid to success for a man. It gives him faith in himself and his judgment, whereas the man who is married to a shrew or a nagger wonders why the fool-killer didn't get him on his wedding day.

The happily married man can give his thoughts to his work, instead of half of his mind being occupied with brooding over domestic woes. It is a great economy for a man to be satisfied with his wife and his home. Illicit love is a short cut to bankruptcy as well as the divorce court.

And for still another reason, it gives a man an incentive, something to work for and strive for. A man will work his fingers to the bone for a wife who keeps him happy, but he will lay down and quit if all he gets at home is whining and complaints. Not without reason do the railroads and the big corporations take into consideration how his wife treats him when they hire a man.

So the most important thing that any wife can do who desires to be an accelerator instead of a brake on her husband is to make him happy. But to do this she must include a lot of sidelines, which make her job as inspirer the hardest one on earth.

She must help her husband by looking after his health and keeping him fit for the battle he is fighting. She must make him a quiet and peaceful home where he can rest and gather up fresh strength for the struggle.

No man whose wife drags him out to parties and dinners and dances every night and who goes dull and groggy to his work the next day can compete with the man who has had a quiet evening at home and eight hours of good, sound sleep.

A wife can help her husband by being a good cook. There is an old saying that there is a woman behind the door of every man's success, and that door is the pantry door, nine times out of 10. For whether a man is a broken-down, nervous dyspeptic at 40, or is going strong at 70, depends upon the way his wife has fed him.

Many a man has been so filled with bile and pessimism from a soggy meal of overdone meat and underdone potatoes that he quarreled with his boss, insulted his best customer, and turned down the golden opportunity that would have made his fortune.

A wife can help her husband by bolstering up his faith in himself and making him feel that she admires him and believes him to be a world wonder. Somehow it is essential to a man to have his wife's admiration, and as long as he has that he is never beaten. He will fight on to the bitter end.

It is the wet-blanket wives, the wives who always discourage every plan their husbands make, who always remind them of every failure they have ever made, who drive their husbands to drink, or other women, or suicide.

A wife can help her husband by being a discreet press agent. She can unobtrusively turn the spotlight on him and call our attention, without our realizing it, to virtues that we had overlooked.

And she can make friends for him. Half the time we go to Doctor Pills because we like little Mrs. Pills so much, or we buy our new automobile from the Speedum Agency because Mrs. Speedum was so nice and sympathetic when we had the flu.

Oh, yes, there are many ways in which a wife can help her husband—or ruin him.

Case Records of a Psychologist

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

Crystal gazing and the frenzied chewing of lead pencils will not produce effective sales points to equal those you obtain by surveying your actual and potential customers. A simple sales point, obtained from a housewife, may be far more effective than a so-called brilliant idea advanced by an advertising executive seated behind his mahogany desk. Hire a good newspaper reporter for a day or two, and he'll bring back the real opinions of the consumers!

CASE R-115: Harry S., aged 42, is advertising manager of a large food concern.

"Now boys," he addressed his advertising assistants, "we must hit upon a new idea around which to build our advertising campaign this season.

"I want you fellows to go into a huddle and see if you can't get some bright idea," whereupon they sat down and chewed lead pencils, trying to create some word-processor of a central motif for their annual advertising campaign.

DIAGNOSIS: There is still too much of this antiquated advertising procedure in modern America. The place to find the best sales ideas is out among the consumers who actually use the merchandise.

Monday I told you that some of our high-powered automobile advertising executives have become so enamored of horsepower and speed that they seem to have overlooked many very significant points, such as fool proof safety latches on the doors.

Thus, their companies fail to sell 4-door sedans, since thousands of parents who would like such cars, are afraid to buy them.

Other businessmen will also find that when they sit behind their mahogany desks trying to out-guess the public's reaction, they overlook many sterling sales points which the housewife could quickly supply.

Why Do People Buy Your Goods? They might also be shocked to find that sales points which the advertising department highlights at much expense, may often be of trivial importance to many buyers.

"Businessmen of all kinds should take a lesson from fishermen. If you want to catch fish, you must use the bait which the FISH will bite on.

And you must not confuse the appetite of the FISHERMAN with that of the FISH. Wouldn't it be folly for a fisherman to spend his time trying to "high-pressure" the trout to bite on mashed potatoes à la graty?

But thousands of otherwise astute businessmen are doing much the same thing today with reference to their customers or newspaper subscribers.

They seem to think that if they personally like a certain feature or sales point, then the general public will also show the same preference. But they are usually not typical of the general customer or average citizen, so they muffle many golden opportunities and waste millions of dollars in futile advertising.

Survey On The Firing Line
If you wish to learn the attitude of the private soldier in war, don't ask the professors at West Point or even the generals far back of the front lines.

Take a hint from the tenacious newspaper reporter who dons a uniform and hobnobs with the fellows in the trenches. Maybe it wouldn't be a bad idea for business firms to hire some of these same newspaper reporters to go out among their potential customers and ferret out the likes and dislikes of those same consumers!

Successful business firms in the future must be well versed in the consumer research method. Monopolies, oil strikes and a certain amount of luck have built up many of the past business corporations, but nowadays you better line up with firms that use the "consumer research" plan.

FIRST PLATE SERVED

Sometimes there is no arbitrating a controversy. When both sides win—there can be no other answer, as in the instance described by the following letter:

"Recently I was seated at the right of the host at a dinner party. I hardly knew the host as I was invited to come with friends of the host with whom I was staying. The host did the carving at the table and passed the first plate to me, but as he did not say anything about my keeping it, I passed it on to the person next to me. I've been told since that when this type of service is used and I am seated on the right of the host and given the first plate, I am expected to keep it. I, on the other hand, argue that this would have been taking my importance for granted. Which way would have been the right one?"

As already noted above, to have kept it would have been correct, and passing it on was proper! In short, it is correctly assumed that the host serves the lady to his right first. And yet, I think one's natural impulse at such a time is to pass the plate on unless told by the host to keep it. Had he asked you which you preferred and then put the filled plate down in front of you, or if he had said, "Will you keep this, please" you would have kept it. As it was, you could not have been criticized either way.

Seating the Bride's Family in Church
Dear Mrs. Post: The bride has four brothers, none of whom are taking part in the wedding. Should these half-grown boys be seated in the front pew with their mother and grandmother, or should they occupy another pew? And please also tell me when they are seated how they should be taken to their places, since I believe it is not customary for an usher to seat a man.

Answer: Since it is hard to see from the seats very far in from the aisle—particularly from those in the front pews—it might be best to let two of the boys sit in the second pew or on the aisle of the third pew. The two older boys might sit next to their mother in the first pew and the other two with their grandmother in the second pew. The younger boys might follow grandmother together when the usher shows her to her place. The older two might drive to church with their mother, and walk together after her as the head usher escorts her. Of if they go to church earlier, they will know where they are to sit and can seat themselves.

How Far Criticism
Dear Mrs. Post: Just how far may a person make recommendations or criticize another's work when that person is contributing his time to a cause and getting no remuneration?

Answer: If inefficiency is detrimental to the cause, then the person

Embarrassing Remarks of Child Should Be Ignored

BY ANGELO PATRI

Little children sometimes make mistakes that embarrass their parents beyond words. Some people, who do not understand little ones, blame parents for teaching youngsters to say and do these unpleasant things when quite the contrary is true.

Cousin Emma was on a long visit and was most welcome. Little Ellen, aged three, seemed to like her and stayed much in her company. One afternoon Cousin Emma objected to something that Ellen did and told her to stop it.

"Go home, you old Emma, you. I don't want you here. I don't like you!" said Ellen, stamping her feet and shouting.

To the family's dismay, Cousin Emma took this seriously, packed her bags and left the house, shaking its dust from her feet and with it all memory of its hospitality. "If she hadn't heard it she wouldn't have said it," was her parting remark.

An Understanding Grandmother
A certain grandmother was more understanding of children's ways. When her little grandson scowled and told her, "Go home, I don't love you any more," granny smiled, gathered up her knitting and her specs and her book and disappeared. No body else came in her stead, and the room grew silent and big and empty. Small grandson began calling, "Mam-m!" When no answer came, he raised his voice and called, "Granny, granny, come on back. I need somebody to help me."

Granny came quickly, poked her head inside the door and waited. "Please, dear granny, come stay with me. I'm lonely."

"Well, I'm very busy, dear. Very busy. Would you like to come to my room and stay while I finish this? I'm very busy."

Grown people have enough experience to understand little children's ways if they but make the effort. Any grown person who places a little child on the same level of maturity as himself is certainly not mature in understanding. There are two children then, and one of them is spoiled past saving.

Children Center of Home Interest
Families know each other individually. Otherwise, they could not be families. One always puts up with the other. Nobody is so completely unselfish as to be a negative influence in the household. It is always necessary to adjust oneself to the others, including the children. This applies most directly to guests. It is fair to suppose that one would not be invited where one was not welcome. Hospitality and good feeling ought to be taken for granted, and one's faith in the family should be firm enough to stand up under a little child's footless remarks.

A guest ought to be more than another chair at the table. There is always something a guest can do to lighten the load on the hostess' back, if it is no more than staying out of the way. Making friends with the children, smoothing their difficulties and heightening their joys is one sure and certain way of earning a welcome. The children are the reason for the home and the center of its interests. Family relatives and staying visitors must revolve about them or keep away from them.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamp, addressed envelope for reply.

HIGH TIDE

By Frances Hanna

YESTERDAY: Lance and Jan have their first quarrel since his accident, over Derek. Lance reproaches himself bitterly. Johnny wants to get Jan a job as hostess at the club but she refuses.

Chapter 12
Room For Rent

Johnny pushed the chair out to the walk, then came back to Jan who was scraping food remnants off plates and stacking dishes to be washed. In the unkind glare of the overhead light she looked tired, he thought. Damn it all, why couldn't she take the job and hire someone to do this drudgery!

He said as much. "I couldn't," she sighed. "You saw how Lance behaved. I wish you hadn't mentioned it in front of him. It's bad for him to be around that way." She didn't tell him she felt like a worn-out buffer from constantly trying to keep things running smoothly in the growing turbulence of her household. For Lance, despite his good resolves, had not apologized for storming about Derek. Instead he had chosen to ignore the whole episode with the consequence that it hung like an opaque curtain between them. Granting that she was entitled to romance, to a sweetheart, he yet resented it should be a man of whom none of them knew anything.

"I'll dry the dishes for you," Johnny offered in an unexpected broke her bad mood, for he was so afraid he'd get a drop of water on his too perfect clothes that he stood far back from the drainboard and reached for dishes with an awkwardness worthy of a movie comic.

When they finished Johnny put his arms around her and peered anxiously down into her weary eyes. "I wish I could take you out of all this. Jan, I'm crazy about you, honey. I will take you out, too, the minute I get my own band."

"If I let you," she parried, too tired to resent his arms about her because they were somehow, comforting and friendly. He drew her head to his shoulder and laid his cheek against her bright, tousled hair. "You're so little and so sweet," he said, gently stroking her shoulder.

The kitchen door swung inward and Derek observed the tableau. "Sorry to intrude," he barked, "but I would like some lotion. My face burns like the very devil."

Jan, embarrassed, shy, drew away from Johnny, detesting the blush she felt dyeing her cheeks. Why should she feel guilty? Certainly she meant nothing to Derek.

"I'll get it for you," she offered, hurrying to the little chest over the sink and taking out a bottle of honey and almond lotion.

While Johnny watched, glowering, she poured some of the liquid into her palm and distributed it carefully over Derek's face and neck. By the time she finished Derek was grinning.

"Did I enter before or after the kiss?" he inquired impudently. Jan glared at him. "That's hateful of you."

"Oh, don't mind me, folks. I'm an ideal chaperone. Right now I intend retiring and leaving you all alone."

"Listen, you," Johnny began, but in charge may not only criticize but would also have to try to rectify the shortcomings. Otherwise, to be tactful is the obvious answer.

Several persons called to her as she passed them and she smiled at them. Most of the concession owners had been here every season for years. They formed a clanish resident colony all their own which was closed to transients. Jan was accepted almost as one of them. They liked her, trusted her, these curious people, spawed of carnival and circus who shouted all summer long at prospective customers with complete and hardened indifference to heckling and staring, happy when warm summer nights drove hordes of "suchers" to their gaudy beach stalls. This new world had opened to her fascinated eyes only two years ago when,

Council Levies Fee of $200 to Unload Carnival

Neenah Organization's Request for Permit Is Refused at Menasha

Menasha — The city council adopted an ordinance providing for a $200-permit as well as a public liability bond for unloading and loading of carnivals from trains in the city at a special meeting last night at city hall, and then refused to grant a permit to the Oriental band of the James P. Hawley post, Neenah American Legion.

Before the ordinance was adopted, the majority of the aldermen agreed that the Oriental band would be getting a "raw deal" and was the "victim of circumstances over which it had no control," but the motion to adopt the ordinance was carried by a vote of 7 to 3.

Then the application for the permit was read, and the motion to grant the permit was defeated, 6 to 4, and a motion for reconsideration also was defeated, 5-1, a two-thirds majority having been needed.

George Rasmussen, Neenah spokesman for the Oriental band, appeared before the council and explained that the contract with the carnival was signed only after a majority of the aldermen had been interviewed and assured them that there would be "no hitch" in unloading in Menasha.

Explains Contract
He explained that according to the contract, the band will have to pay the permit fee, but had the band officials known that this was going to happen, a different type of contract would have been arranged or wouldn't have been accepted. He said that the band had $306 in its treasury and had already paid $242 in fees and other items and that it was trying to raise enough money to pay its expenses to the national Legion convention at Boston.

The Legionnaire informed the council that the carnival officials had agreed to take out liability insurance and to do all its business with Menasha merchants as well as conduct unloading and loading as quietly and as fast as possible. These were the complaints registered following a recent carnival which unloaded in Menasha.

Opposing the motion to adopt the ordinance were Aldermen Edward Zeininger, John Pinkerton and Walter O'Brien. These three men explained to the council when they voted, that they were opposed to carnivals unloading here at all but they didn't think the band was given a fair play. Mayor William Jensen agreed with them. Later Aldermen O'Brien and Zeininger changed their vote in favor of Alderman John Scanlon, Fourth ward representative, in whose ward the unloading takes place.

Vote on Permit
Opposing the motion to grant the permit were Aldermen P. Laemmrich, R. W. Keefe, Zeininger, P. Keapock, Scanlon and Edward Stinski, and opposing reconsideration were Laemmrich, Keefe, Zeininger, Keapock and Stinski. Alderman Scanlon moved for reconsideration, stating that he wasn't "pledged" enough not to listen to the majority.

Alderman Laemmrich proposed a $250-permit but later reduced it to $200 at the suggestion of other aldermen. The bond, which will cover cost of damage to streets, sidewalks and crosswalks, will depend upon the size of the show and governed by the council, Attorney R. J. Fink explained.

Alderman William DeBruin stated that the main purpose of the ordinance was to discourage carnivals from coming here so the fee shouldn't be low.

New Thoroughfare at Menasha Will be Called State Street

Menasha—The city council at a special meeting last night at city hall voted to name a new thoroughfare between Sixth and Seventh streets as State street.

Alderman Edward Stinski reported that the property owners on the street petitioned that the council adopt the name.

Mayor William Jensen, Street Commissioner Peter J. Kasel and the street committee was authorized to test the quality of gravel being received from the Ullrich company for building Menasha streets.

The council voted to instruct City Clerk Walter Dougherty to write a letter of congratulation to William Reimer, president of the Germania society, for the society's success in sponsoring the Fourth of July celebration.

The Twin Cities office of the Appleton Post-Crescent for its editorial, circulation and display advertising departments is located at 510 N. Commercial street, and the telephone number is 4100. News items, copy or orders for display advertising and orders for subscriptions may be left at the office or telephoned. Orders for classified advertising should be placed by telephoning 543 in Appleton, and the cost of the telephone call will be rebated. The Twin Cities office closes at 7 o'clock in the evening.

K-C Band Appears in First Summer Concert

Neenah — The Kimberly-Clark corporation's employees band presented the first of a series of summer concerts, under the direction of Lester Mais, Neenah High school director, last evening at Riverside park.

Nearly 600 persons attended the opening concert, and 36 members of the musical organization took part. Mais will direct the Neenah High school junior and seniors bands in the second of a series of weekly demonstration concerts at the high school athletic field this evening.

The four required dives for women are plain front, plain back and half twist and back somersault and two optional dives one on the 1-meter board and one on the 3-meter board.

Second of Month
It will be the second meet sponsored this month at the pool, for a meet for girls and boys 13 years of age and under will be held at 8:30 Friday morning. Later in the season a meet will be staged which will be open to all Fox river valley swimmers and divers.

Explaining the purpose of the city meet, Jorgensen stated that until this spring when the new pool was opened, swimming in the lake for Neenah people practically was restricted to staying afloat, but after witnessing the demonstration by expert swimmers and divers at the recent dedication ceremony, men and women as well as boys and girls have realized the extended possibilities in swimming and diving.

The plan of the swimming pool management, he continued, is to further create an interest in swimming and diving by promoting several meets and exhibitions during the summer. All local swimmers and divers will be encouraged to learn competitive swimming and diving so that they can enter meets, to give everyone an opportunity, especially girls and boys to get started in the right direction, competition in these meets will be classified into age groups, so that persons will be competing against others of their own age group and ability.

He said that the swimming pool staff is eager to assist anyone interested in learning the various phases of swimming and diving.

The life guard pointed out that competition in swimming meets usually is divided into races of various distances in the free style, which means that competitors are allowed to use any type of stroke they wish. Races also are held in the backstroke only as well as in the breaststroke, and records are recognized in all three classes. There also is a fourth class, the medley, in which each swimmer swims one length of the pool using the breaststroke, returns using the backstroke and finishes with a length of the crawl stroke.

Remodeling Jobs Are Authorized

Neenah—Permits for two large remodeling jobs were granted this morning by John Blenker, city building inspector.

Charles Sorensen, Sr., was granted a permit to build two additions, one to his furniture store and the other to the Neenah Hardware store on W. Wisconsin avenue, and to remodel the furniture store. The addition to the furniture store will be 30 by 40 feet and the one to the hardware store will be 26 1/2 by 29 1/2 feet. They will be of masonry construction and one story high. They will have a built-up roof and 10-inch concrete wall basements.

The J. W. Hewitt Machine company, N. Commercial street, was granted permission to build an addition and remodel its shop at a cost of $6,500. The addition, which will be of masonry construction, will be 30 by 49 feet and one story high with a built-up roof.

Deadline on Truck Licenses Is Near

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau
Oshkosh—Deadline for truck and trailer license plates is July 15, James Morrissey, state traffic inspector for Winnebago county announced this week.

After this date, Morrissey warned, a careful checkup of trucks and trailers will be made by police to see that all vehicles have their new plates. Under the state statutes, conviction of anyone operating an unlicensed motor vehicle subjects them to suspension of both their driver's license and the license plates of all motor vehicles which they own.

Regarding the mechanics of sending for licenses, Morrissey said that new renewal application blanks, which now incorporate both registration and motor carrier permit, have been mailed to truck and trailer owners in the state, but that anyone who has not received his blank can obtain one from any police department. Certificate of title, fee, and renewal application blank should be mailed to the Motor Vehicle department, Madison, Wisconsin.

Farmers wishing to relicense a farm truck, with no change in ownership, need send only a certificate of title and five dollars, Morrissey explained. In this case no renewal blank or farm use affidavit is necessary.

If change of ownership is established, Morrissey pointed out, or if a new truck is purchased, the regular process of filling out a farm use affidavit is required. Affidavits may be obtained from police and sheriff departments or from banks and motor vehicle dealers in rural communities.

County Board Session Will Open Tuesday

Action on Highway 41 Route, Purchase of Airport Is Expected

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau
Oshkosh—A special meeting of the Winnebago county board has been called for 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, according to A. E. Hedke, county clerk.

Petitions, containing the names of 23 supervisors and requesting the special session, were completed and filed this week.

According to the petition, discussion at the special meeting is to be limited to consideration of the report from the county aviation committee and to matters pertaining to highways. A two-thirds vote of the board, however, can open the meeting to consideration of other matters if this is desired.

E. M. Bird, highway commissioner, expressed the belief that the state department probably will get in touch with the highway committee prior to the holding of the special session next Tuesday if anything relative to the relocation of Highway 41 is to be discussed at that time.

May Compromise
No official confirmation has been made, as yet, of the rumor that the state department is planning on presenting a proposed rerouting plan to the county board that would have the present construction on highway 41 proceed on a belt-line around the city of Oshkosh.

One rumored report has it that if such a proposal is presented by the state, a "compromise" proposal will be offered by Oshkosh which will attempt to bring the relocation closer to the present route of Highway 41. Such a plan, it is expected, would have an alternate route through Oshkosh via Oregon street and Jackson drive.

The county aviation committee is to meet Thursday, July 11, in order to complete its report in time for the board meeting next week. It is expected that the committee will recommend purchase of the Oshkosh airport property by the county.

Dr. Landskron Is Secretary of Rod, Gun Club

Election Postponed To January; Picnic Planned for July 28

Neenah—The Twin City Rod and Gun club again deferred election of officers at a meeting last night at the city hall auditorium, but Dr. W. F. Landskron was elected secretary of the club, filling the unexpected term of S. K. Seiber, who resigned last night.

The election was postponed because of the lack of a quorum, so it was decided to change the bylaws affecting the election from June to January and to change the number of members required to be present from 75 to 45. Present officers will hold office until January.

The club went on record opposing any private hunting grounds in Winnebago county, and the secretary was instructed to notify the conservation commission of the action. The club also voted to discontinue the Winchester game reserve which it has kept up for 10 years. President Clarence Anderson, who had been elected last year, was not interested in building a fishway on the Neenah dam.

Plans for the annual club picnic, which will be held at Stroebe's island Sunday, July 28, were discussed. Conservation officers Fred Grimmer and Alvin E. O'Konsky will attend, and a Shawano rifle squad will match the local team. There will be music, skeet shooting, games, lunch and refreshments.

Reports from committeemen showed that the pheasants released recently were doing well, that the field trials on Monday night on S. Commercial street were being well attended and that a rabbit trap building bee will be held at Anderson's home Saturday afternoon.

Joseph Mucha gave a talk on water vegetation in this vicinity and swamp planting.

Fined After Car Damages Another

Neenah—Ed Lachmann, 415 Park drive, Neenah, pleaded guilty of reckless driving when arraigned this morning before Justice of the Peace Elmer H. Radtke and was fined $15 and costs under the city ordinance and $1 and costs under the state law. His driver's license was revoked until he can show financial responsibility to the secretary of state. Fines and fees totaled $24.

Neenah police reported they arrested the defendant following an accident at 11:25 last night on N. Commercial street near W. Canal street.

A car driven by Lachmann and owned by Louis Madden, Milwaukee, collided with a car owned by John Hardt, 533 Oak street, Neenah, which was parked on the west side of the street. The right side of the car driven by the defendant was damaged and the left side of the Hardt car was bent.

Mueller Team Beats Kruegers by 4-3 Count

Neenah—Mueller's Tavern scored a 1-point victory over the league-leading Krueger Hardware, 4 to 3, in the Senior Softball league last night at the Island diamond.

In the other circuit contests, Lakewood won from the Legion, 13 to 7, at Washington park, and Lakeview Recreation drubbed Neenah Milk Products, 12 to 5, at the high school diamond.

Rejoins Company in Advisory Capacity

Menasha—F. J. Fitzgerald, 649 Broad street, former official of the Cudahy Brothers company, Milwaukee, has rejoined the firm in an advisory capacity. Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald will leave for Milwaukee this afternoon for a few days. They will continue to make their home in Menasha.

Mrs. Alfred Schultz, 165 Gruenwald avenue, Neenah, underwent a major operation at Theda Clark hospital.

TEAMED IN NEW PICTURE—Fredric March and Joan Crawford are seen as the screen's newest husband-and-wife team in "Susan and God," filmization of the Rachel Crothers' comedy success, which will show at the Appleton theater starting Saturday. The second feature is the "Florian" with Robert Young, Helen Gilbert, Charles Coburn, Lee Bowman and Reginald Owen.

Jobs or More School Work Occupy Graduates' Thoughts

Neenah—Twin City graduates of college and universities are busy this summer acclimating themselves to new jobs, looking for jobs or attending summer school sessions for further work.

Robin Smith was graduated from the University of Wisconsin last month but is making the most of his vacation days because he will return to the campus in September to begin his medical school work. His brother Greg, a pre-medical student, who completed his freshman year at the university in June, is at summer school. The boys are sons of Dr. and Mrs. T. D. Smith, Lakeshore avenue.

Richard Ber, another graduate of the state university in June, has accepted a position with the National Cash Register company in Dayton, Ohio. He is the son of the Henry Ber's, Third street.

Commission Orders Garage Investigated

Menasha—The city planning commission at a meeting last night at city hall instructed City Engineer A. E. McMahon to investigate the construction of a garage by Harold Garrigan, 600 Appleton street.

It was said that Garrigan was granted a permit to build the garage facing Appleton street but that it was built facing Fourth street, resulting in non-compliance with setback requirements. The engineer was instructed to measure the lot to determine whether there is sufficient room.

An application from Melvin Smith 804 Pacific street, to raise his house and construct a basement under it was read. He also asked to move one of the four buildings on the lot to a corner lot. The commission instructed the building inspector to investigate the condition of the lot and report to the Wisconsin Industrial commission. It also was pointed out that the house, which was built before the street was constructed, doesn't comply with setback requirements.

County Receives $67 From March of Dimes

Neenah—Dr. M. N. Pitz, Neenah, head of the Winnebago county chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, has received a check for $67.87 from Ray Novotny, Oshkosh, county chairman of the march of dimes campaign.

This amount represents the county's share of the proceeds sent in birthday greetings to President Roosevelt last January. Of the full share of $135.74 contributed by this county, one-half was turned over to the national committee, and the county's share of the proceeds of the 1940 campaign turned over to the local chapter amounts to $168.69.

window he was talking to some men, and went out to the pier's end. She liked just to stand here and look down at the water battering night and day at the pilings below.

Usually the unremitting roll of the surf lulled her, but tonight it did not. She kept thinking of Derek and of Johnny, wishing that scene in the kitchen had not occurred. Not that it mattered. Derek had made that quite clear on the rooftop the day he kissed her. Nevertheless, it made her miserable to think he had seen her the first time she had ever been in Johnny's arms, and probably the last.

Too Sensitive
"Am I falling in love with Derek?" she wondered. If this was love, she thought she'd rather skip it. One moment exaltation; the next depression. She was becoming too sensitive, too vulnerable. "I ought to get rid of him," she thought, and the thought made her feel empty.

Soon after she reached home Norma returned with Lance. He greeted his sister with feverish enthusiasm, telling her in detail all about the airplane sequences of the picture. He liked Gable and Tracy, he said, and the scenes were almost too real.

"Tell her what happened," Norma prompted, looking a little white, more than a little disturbed.

"Remember all the photographs of me when I won the west coast air races?" he asked, his face radiant. "After the picture tonight the lights went on, Jan, and somebody recognized me. Pretty soon everybody in the place was craning to see me, saying 'That fellow was a test pilot. He knows all about it. He was over at the Lockair Plant.' They crowded around me, Sis, and talked to me and wanted my autograph."

They talked a while longer, waiting for Frank. Jan had stopped in just long enough to tell him of Lance's theatre venture and he'd promised to run in when the show was over. When he came, taking Lance upstairs, Norma seized Jan's hands, squeezed them fearfully.

"I didn't know," she whispered. "Test pilot was just a name of something to do with aviation. Oh, Jan, I couldn't bear it if Lance were ever to fly again! I—Lance go mad imagining disaster. How did you bear it?"

"I didn't know either," Jan told her quietly. "He never allowed me near the field. I was in school. I didn't learn how dangerous it was until—until afterward. I can't even talk about it. I get sick inside."

Their hands clung a moment in silent understanding, then Jan said, "Let's make coffee and sandwiches for the men and stop being tragic!" Following Derek's advice to forget her painting awhile, Jan scrawled in a sun suit on the beach before the house the next afternoon, watching the hordes of people crawl around on the sand, for all the world like ants, happy because the sun was hot and the water not too cold, overjoyed to see their white flesh burning a painful red, uncaring of tonight's irking blisters.

Through her amber sun glasses she saw a smartly-dressed young woman turn in on the short cobbled walk to the red house and scrutinize the "for rent" placard. Springing up, Jan caught her just as she reached the wide oak door with the curtained port hole set in its upper half.

"I'm the landlady," Jan smiled. "Did you wish to see the room?"

Church Will Help Care for War Refugees

St. Thomas Parish Is Joining in Plan to Aid Anglican Children

Menasha—St. Thomas Episcopal church and its parish members will cooperate with the movement in America to place 60,000 refugee Anglican children in American homes during the duration of the war, it was learned today from the Rev. A. A. Chambers, rector.

The presiding bishop of the Episcopal church, the Most Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, has offered to place 5,000 of these children in Episcopal church homes and Menasha's St. Thomas parish will cooperate as far as possible in the placement.

The Rev. Mr. Chambers has stated that anyone interested in taking any of the children into their homes under this plan, for the duration of the war, should contact him at the parish house. Several members of the St. Thomas parish have expressed their interest in the plan but no definite action has been taken as yet. Twin City people interested will be able to specify the age group from which they desire to take a child and may express preference for boys or girls.

The Rev. Mr. Chambers expects to have further information on the plan within a short time.

The club voted to have refreshments at the meetings in the form of a supper dessert.

Vosburg School Will Be Closed Next Term

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh—The Vosburg school, town of Vinland, will be closed next year, it was voted Monday evening at the annual school district meeting. The three pupils who would be enrolled in the school next term will be transported to the Allen-ville school, according to Chester Vosburg, district clerk.

vading the farms here, the plague as yet is but a very small fraction of the swarms which last year at this time were doing much damage. Then even the lawns and sides of buildings were alive with hoppers, and crops in many fields were completely demolished. It is thought the wet cold season has hindered their hatching.

Mr. and Mrs. Alois Fahrnkug and Miss Majel Reinert, 1609 S. Lawe street, and Frank Sonleitner, 1701 S. Lawe street, attended the funeral of Mrs. Sophia Jones at Tigerton Saturday.

Clapper Is Disgusted With Silence About Third Term

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—By the nature of his trade, every newspaperman dislikes someone else bottling up a secret. In our business we are for open book-keeping, openly arrived at. Therefore it makes me boiling mad to read newspaper dispatches from Hyde park reporting that President Roosevelt has revealed his third-term plans to Chairman Farley under a pledge of secrecy.

Maybe I am just grinding an ax. Yet I can't think of any public interest to be served by Mr. Roosevelt's dangling the nation's No. 1 political secret tauntingly before the country. And what party interest does it serve?

Mr. Roosevelt's handling of the situation has reduced his party to humiliating subservency. Delegates will meet at Chicago in less than a week for the Democratic national convention but they haven't the faintest idea what the orders will be and they are publicly told as much in the dispatches from Hyde park.

New Dealers who have staked everything on re-nominating Mr. Roosevelt are so nervous now that they have been discussing the possibility of pulling the president and then quit quickly before he could possibly reject the nomination.

The situation has compelled the practical politicians in the party to tie themselves firmly to the third-term kite. Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City announces that he and that other starry-eyed New Dealer, Mayor Kelly of Chicago, are for Roosevelt all the way. Hague says he has all of his eggs in one basket—the Roosevelt basket. He has no second choice. If Mr. Roosevelt should decline to run, then Mayor Hague would have to dig some other candidate out of the mothballs in a hurry. Practically every state leader in the Democratic party is in the same situation. Until Mr. Roosevelt takes himself out they cannot afford to do anything except call for a third term.

This situation leaves every other possible candidate completely boxed in. Hull's friends are helpless to do any effective work for him. Garner's friends are going through motions of continuing the race but they know it doesn't mean anything. McNutt's friends are hating only for the vice presidency row. Governor Stark of Missouri hasn't asked for anything except the vice presidential nomination. This situation has, in fact, made it impossible for anyone to stand up as of presidential rank—it has reduced the whole field to the stature of thistleblossoms.

Even Farley has been kept at arm's length. Postmaster General Farley, who is not only a member of the cabinet but chairman of the Democratic national committee, and who was the manager of Mr. Roosevelt's two previous campaigns, has been kept at arm's length for months. Over the last weekend he was called to Hyde Park and let in on the secret—but not permitted to divulge it. A more embarrassing position than that in which Farley finds himself is difficult to imagine.

Farley says both he and the president talked frankly at Hyde Park. That means that if Mr. Roosevelt is going to run again, Farley is not likely to manage the campaign. A better guess for the job would be Frank C. Walker, who was one of the original Roosevelt men. He is a good politician, a good money-raiser.

Small Majority Favors Military Conscription

1-Year Training Is Approved in Poll
Among Young Men; Army Most Popular

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J.—Does the resolution adopted by the American Youth Congress condemning conscription represent the typical attitude of American young men?

The Congress, besides opposing compulsory military training, unanimously adopted a report by its national chairman criticizing the defense program as designed to "Hitlerize" the country.

National surveys by the American Institute of Public Opinion, indicate, however, that opposition to conscription does not represent the typical attitude of the young men of America. While there are divisions of opinion, nevertheless a small majority of those aged 21 through 25 are in favor of compulsory military training for one year for all able-bodied young men.

That issue was put to the country in a survey as follows: "Do you think every able-bodied young man 20 years old should be made to serve in the army or the navy for one year?"

Those persons in the sample aged 21 through 25 voted as follows:

Yes 52% No 48%

This compares with a vote of 64 per cent for conscription among all voters throughout the country.

In a companion survey, the Institute sought to find what branch of the fighting forces American men of military age—21 to 46—would prefer to serve in if they had to fight. Several recruiting offices report that the navy and airforce seem to appeal to young volunteer recruits as more adventurous and glamorous than the regular army. But what would be the choice if all men of military age, and not merely young volunteers out to see the world, were questioned?

The Institute asked a cross-section of men aged 21 to 46:

"If the United States were attacked by some foreign country, which branch of the armed forces would you prefer to serve in?"

Only about one in every ten (11 per cent) expressed no choice. The rest divided as follows:

Would prefer army 44%

Would prefer airforce 29%

Would prefer navy 24%

Others 3%

The reason why the army is preferred is clearly shown in the explanations given by voters for their choice. Most typical of the majority is the statement of a New York businessman who served in the army in 1917-18.

"I'd join the army. It's closer to normal conditions of living than any other branch. I don't want to be up in the air, or out at sea. I want to be on the ground."

Another voter, a farmer in Magnolia, Miss., expressed it this way: "The army's the place for me—you can't drown and you don't have to bail out in parachutes."

JUNGLE ROMANCE—"Safari," thrilling jungle romance starring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Madeleine Carroll, opens Friday at the Rio theater. Co-featured on the same program is Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard in "The Ghost Breakers."

Those who pick the airforce give two reasons:

"There's always lots of action in the airforce."

"I've always wanted to fly and learn something about aviation."

It is interesting to note that the number of men in the poll who would prefer the airforce constitutes about one-third of the total.

This is almost exactly the proportion of men used by the Nazis in the air wing of their armed forces, and, according to military experts, is about the correct ratio for a modern army to have.

Men who have a preference for the navy point to the fact that it

Pegler Brands Annenberg as Ingrate to Generous Nation

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—It will be hard to find anywhere in the underworld of the United States a more vicious and dangerous example of ingratitude to the generous nation which opened her arms to the oppressed peoples of the old world than Moses L. Annenberg, who has just been sentenced to three years in a federal prison for failure to pay the income tax on the greatest individual cash income in the country.

Annenberg came to America from East Prussia as a little boy, the son of an immigrant refugee from the persecution and limitation of opportunity which drove millions to the United States. His father became a peddler and junk dealer, and Moe himself, as a boy, sold papers on the corners of the turbulent, uncouth prairie capital, Chicago. He had a talent, carelessly described as genius, for organizing business and became rich in more or less legitimate activities in the circulation and publishing departments of the newspaper industry.

But his character was low, cunning and criminal, and, not satisfied with the wealth that poured in from his newspaper activities, he organized a monopoly over the dissemination of horse race results in league with the underworld of crime and politics. This monopoly fed race results to a vast, illegal system of gambling joints in more than 200 cities of the United States and Canada, and these joints corrupted government and the courts, worst of all in that Chicago where he had first sampled freedom of opportunity which he never would have enjoyed in Germany.

Moe Annenberg's greed for money and his cynical ingratitude to the United States were such that he was willing to corrupt the form of government which gave him his chance to become a rich and powerful man. He was so greedy and ungrateful that, having participated in that means a chance to travel, that it involves less physical hardship than the army, and that it is more colorful and glamorous than packing a rifle and marching along dusty roads.

corruption of the system which endowed him with unaccustomed rights and human dignity, having undermined the stability of that system, he even stole, by withholding them, the taxes which he knew he should have paid into the national treasury for the support of that system and its defense against foreign enemies, including the very nation which now has reduced his people to subhuman status. It has been argued in his defense that he did not know he was withholding his taxes. His affairs were so large and the interrelations of his companies were so entangled that his business outgrew his bookkeeping. Was shrewd enough in building monopoly.

That, however, is only his squeal. He was shrewd enough to form those corporations and to outwit the underworld in building his monopoly, and the very character of this dirty business of his was such as to prove that he had no feeling of respect or gratitude for the form of government which suffered day by day and year after year from his activities. Not merely from the added burden of taxes which was placed on other Americans but from the very real and perceptible impairment of the Democratic system, all Americans suffered from the greedy rascality of this ruthless master-ingrate.

His worst offense was one that cannot be charged in an indictment under the American laws. It is a moral offense. His worst offense was the damage to public confidence in the city government and faith in the courts and in the efficiency of Democratic government which was wrought by the operation of his evil business.

Of the thousands of clients who subscribed to the race news purveyed by his racket only a negligible few legitimate news publications were legal. Generally speaking, his news service existed for and by corruption. Most of his clients were bookmakers or poolrooms operating in violation of the law and by the connivance of corrupt mayors, judges, prosecutors, city councilors and state legislators.

In Chicago, where he first practiced the freedom of opportunity which America gave an oppressed

Immigrant, Moe's influence was most destructive, for in Chicago the outlaw gamblers came to have as influential if not dominant voice in the city government. And in proportion to the rise of their influence so the faith of the people in popular government declined.

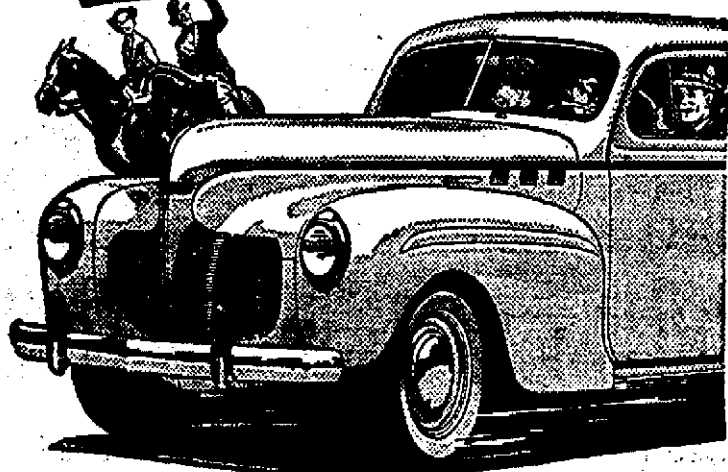

No bigot ranting from pulpit or soapbox—not Fritz Kuhn himself of the anti-American band—has been a worse enemy to the dignity and well-being of the Jews in the United States than Moe Annenberg. He could have been a conspicuous example of decency and gratitude to America, but it just wasn't in him.

LAST NIGHT'S SCORES

Fondy 10, La Crosse 5.
Appleton 5, Sheboygan 3.
Rapids 4, Green Bay 2.

The Appleton Papermakers won their second game in as many nights and their third in four starts last night when they swept the series with Sheboygan. What's more, they moved within 10 percentage points of the Indians in the standings. Tonight the teams clash again at Sheboygan with another game tomorrow.

Friday the Papermakers will be home for three games with La Crosse and then three with the Rapids. La Crosse opens here Friday night with two games starting at 8 o'clock. It also will be ladies night with the women admitted free. La Crosse closes the series on Saturday night with a single game.

Sunday will have Wisconsin Rapids here in another twin bill. They also will be night games starting at 8 o'clock. The home stand closes Monday night with the Rapids in a single game.

Dick Williams, the unpredictable southpaw, on the mound for the Papermakers last night and turned in ten strikeouts and allowed eight hits as the Papermakers defeated Sheboygan, 5 to 3. He issued only three walks which was right smart for when Dick is going badly his control gets him in all kinds of trouble.

Joe Pizzi, the crown prince of the Sheboygan staff opposed him for six hits and gave up nine hits and all the Appleton runs. He walked one and fanned three but wasn't the confident, cocky hurler he is when he's going good. He retired in the sixth to await a better evening and Hamilton succeeded him. The latter gave up no hits.

Score in First
Appleton scored a run in the first and had a second one halted a few feet from the plate but this time the marker wasn't bad luck. With one out, Hawk tripped to right. Malattia then whistled a drive past Hauser at first and out into right for two bases as Hawk counted. Chellified but Danicisk rolled one to Firkko at second base and it squirted away from him and Murphy, who had gone to third on the play, started for home. Miller retrieved the ball and threw to Kuschta who caught Murphy by two feet.

The Papermakers went after Pizzi in the second, too. With one down, Standaert singled to center. Ray Malewig then shot a drive into right for a triple and Standaert scored. Williams whiffed but Oberlander singled to right and Malewig crossed the rubber.

In the fourth, the Papermakers scored another run. Standaert got his second hit and went to second on a passed ball. Malewig drew a walk but Williams rolled to the pitcher and Standaert was erased at third, with Malewig going to second. Oberlander then singled to center and Malewig scampered home.

The final run came in the fifth on Appleton's attempted double steal which was successful because Firkko of the Indians let the catcher's throw get away. Danicisk was on third and Hoffken on first. Bus pilfered second and Danicisk made no effort to go home until the ball got away from Firkko. Hoffken got a stolen base but Danicisk's marker was on an error.

Start Was Bad
Things didn't look too good for Appleton as the game opened. The first man up for Sheboygan hit the first ball for a single to left, and the second drew a walk. But when Herich hit sharply to Malewig at third and Ray tagged the bag and tossed to first for a twin killing, two thirds of the trouble was over.

Sheboygan had two left on base in the second and one in the third and scored a run in the fourth. With one down, Hodge was hit by a pitched ball. He went all the way home when Kuschta doubled to right. Kuschta was out trying to slide into third base.

The final two runs came in the seventh. Kuschta opened with a single to left. Firkko singled to center and Holtz was sent in as a pinch hitter. He fanned, however, bringing up Gasper who singled to left as Kuschta tallied. Miller then rolled to Malewig who bobbled as he prepared to try to stop Firkko at home plate. He recovered in time to get Miller at first, however, and when Herich fanned the side was retired. In the eighth, with one down, Zydowsky tripped to right but died on third base.

Manager Joe Hauser of the Indians furnished the only other excitement. He worked at first base and no sooner had the game started than he started to ride the plate umpire on balls and strikes. When Joe was called out in the first for the final out, he gave one of his best exhibitions as the fans rode him as hard as he rode the umpire. And when Malattia pushed a double past him they booed some more. FONDY BEATS LA CROSSE

Fond du Lac—Fond du Lac pounded Lefty Johnson for his second loss of the campaign here Tuesday night, taking a 10 to 5 verdict over the La Crosse Black Hawks, to cut the league leaders' latest win streak in the Wisconsin State circuit to five.

Miller retrieved the ball and threw to Kuschta who caught Murphy by two feet.

The Papermakers went after Pizzi in the second, too. With one down, Standaert singled to center. Ray Malewig then shot a drive into right for a triple and Standaert scored. Williams whiffed but Oberlander singled to right and Malewig crossed the rubber.

In the fourth, the Papermakers scored another run. Standaert got his second hit and went to second on a passed ball. Malewig drew a walk but Williams rolled to the pitcher and Standaert was erased at third, with Malewig going to second. Oberlander then singled to center and Malewig scampered home.

The final run came in the fifth on Appleton's attempted double steal which was successful because Firkko of the Indians let the catcher's throw get away. Danicisk was on third and Hoffken on first. Bus pilfered second and Danicisk made no effort to go home until the ball got away from Firkko. Hoffken got a stolen base but Danicisk's marker was on an error.

Start Was Bad
Things didn't look too good for Appleton as the game opened. The first man up for Sheboygan hit the first ball for a single to left, and the second drew a walk. But when Herich hit sharply to Malewig at third and Ray tagged the bag and tossed to first for a twin killing, two thirds of the trouble was over.

Sheboygan had two left on base in the second and one in the third and scored a run in the fourth. With one down, Hodge was hit by a pitched ball. He went all the way home when Kuschta doubled to right. Kuschta was out trying to slide into third base.

The final two runs came in the seventh. Kuschta opened with a single to left. Firkko singled to center and Holtz was sent in as a pinch hitter. He fanned, however, bringing up Gasper who singled to left as Kuschta tallied. Miller then rolled to Malewig who bobbled as he prepared to try to stop Firkko at home plate. He recovered in time to get Miller at first, however, and when Herich fanned the side was retired. In the eighth, with one down, Zydowsky tripped to right but died on third base.

Manager Joe Hauser of the Indians furnished the only other excitement. He worked at first base and no sooner had the game started than he started to ride the plate umpire on balls and strikes. When Joe was called out in the first for the final out, he gave one of his best exhibitions as the fans rode him as hard as he rode the umpire. And when Malattia pushed a double past him they booed some more. Other licks came when Hauser dropped a ball at first base for no damage and when he went down on a called strike in the sixth—and didn't protest!

Facing C. Y. O.

Hawaiian Squad Will Scrap With Unbeaten Chicago Team Tonight

Chicago—(7)—Hawaii's amateur boxing champions step into the ring at Soldier Field tonight hoping to hand Chicago's Catholic Youth Organization its first team defeat in 25 inter-city and international matches.

The C. Y. O. fighters are undefeated in 10 years of team battling, winning 20 and tying five matches against outsiders. Last year they met with Ireland's best punchers ended in a draw.

Hawaii presents one of the best balanced squads ever to appear here, the same that won the team title at the national A. A. U. ring tournament a year ago.

The program, expected to draw 30,000 spectators to the massive lakefront stadium, calls for 11 bouts between the Hawaiians and C. Y. O., in addition to six preliminaries. Jack Dempsey will referee the heavyweight bout.

Play Ball!

Red Hot defeated Sixteenth Ward Bulldogs, 16 to 5, in a softball battle this week at Commercial and Mason field. Rollie Rehfeldt and Reggis Ahrens was the battery for the winners, with Gordon Lillge hurrying for the Bulldogs.

Americans Get Three Hits, Drop All-Star Game, 4 to 0

Max West of Boston Stars With Homer

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN

St. Louis—(7)—At noon it was a hunch—nothing more—that caused Manager Bill McKechnie to insert Max West of Boston in the starting lineup of the National circuit in the annual major league all-star baseball game.

Thirteen minutes after the contest was under way, it was a brilliant piece of strategy as West deposited a three-run homer in the right field bleachers and started his mates toward a 4 to 0 triumph over the American league.

McKechnie's belief that Mel Ott of the New York Giants, listed to start in right field until shortly before game time yesterday, would be of more value in the late innings when the garden would be the sun field prompted the Deacon to make the change.

West's knockout punch before a man was out in the first combined with an assortment of all star pitching produced the third National league victory and the first shut-out of the competition.

Dole Out Three Hits

Five hurlers the Nationals summoned to the mound—Paul Derringer and Bucky Walters of the Reds, Whit Wyatt of Brooklyn, Larry French of the Cubs and Carl Hubbell of the Giants—doled out but three hits.

Luke Appling of the Chicago White Sox, collected a double and a single and Buck Newsom, the bellicose Detroit fighter, cracked a one-baser. . . Never did the losers have more than one runner on the paths and Appling was the only one to get beyond second.

It was the White Sox shortstop's double off Derringer in the second that brought about West's removal. The Boston clouter tried to make a leaping catch and slammed into the concrete retaining wall. He suffered a bruised hip but is expected to play again Thursday when action is resumed in the big leagues after a three-day lay off.

But West wasn't the only luminary in the contest which probably was as thrilling as any yet played, although the winners dominated all the way.

Billy Herman, the Cub second baseman, laced out three hits—equal of the entire opposition output—and late in the fracas a double play by Eddie Miller of Boston, Pete Coscarart of Brooklyn and Frank McComick of Cincinnati nipped a threat.

And after McKechnie pulled his first team the "seconds" scored the fourth run off Cleveland's great Bob

N. L. STRATEGISTS HAPPY—Exulting over the National league victory in the All-Star game at St. Louis are Manager Bill McKechnie (left) of the National league team, Coach Casey Stengel (center) and Coach Doc Prothro. They are shown in the dressing room after the Nationals had administered the Americans a 4 to 0 shellacking.

Feller in the eighth but they needed an error by catcher Rollie Hemlock to chase the tally across.

Aside from Appling's robust clouting the losers' chief contribution to the entertainment of the 32,373 fans was the fielding of Joe Gordon, Yank middle sacker.

Although his players grabbed the spotlight, the contest did nothing to dim the luster of McKechnie.

His choice of West, who climaxed the first assault on Charley Ruffing, was an admitted "lucky hunch," but he catered to the St. Louis crowd by playing their own Terry Moore in center field the full nine innings although he used 22 of the 25 players allowed him.

Only manager—shortstop Leo Durocher of Brooklyn and pitchers Hugh Mulcahy and Kirby Higbe of the Phillies, were inactive. It was the Deacon's second victory of the year over an American all-star crew. He won a 2 to 1 verdict in a Florida spring training contest.

Cub in Hospital

Chicago—(7)—Glenn (Rip) Russell, Chicago Cubs first baseman, underwent an emergency appendectomy today at Illinois Masonic hospital.

Dr. John F. Davis, Cub team physician, said after the operation that Russell's condition was "very good."

Brews Handed Two Beatings

Drop Pair of Games To Columbus; Blues Add to A. A. Lead

Columbus, O., (7)—The Columbus Red Birds handed the Milwaukee Brewers two beatings yesterday, taking the first game, 6 to 5, in 10 innings and the second, 2 to 1.

Tom Sunkel, pitching in a relief role, hurled great ball the final three innings of the opener and drove in the winning run with a single after two were out in the tenth frame. The game was scheduled for seven innings.

Harry Brecheen bested Bob Kline in the second game for his eighth victory of the year. Kline, a Columbus athlete who was honored in a special "line night" program, was charged with his first loss. Both of the Red Bird runs were unearned.

Score by innings:
(First Game)

R. H. E.
Milwaukee 130 001 000 0-5 9 1
Columbus 003 010 100 1-6 19 2

Marrow, Jungels, (5), Dickinson (8) and Garbark; Melton, Barret (4), Sherrill (6), Sunkel (8) and Cooper.

(Second Game)

R. H. E.
Milwaukee 010 000 000-1 5 2
Columbus 000 001 001-2 8 2

Kline and Hankins; Brecheen and Cooper.

The Kansas City Blues gained two full games last night by defeating lowly Toledo twice, 2 to 1 and 4 to 1, the second game being called at the end of six innings because of the curfew law.

Louisville bounced Minneapolis in another night doubleheader, 5 to 2 and 6 to 2. Tex Hughson gave the Millers seven hits in the first game and Al Hollingsworth yielded only three in the seven-inning aftermath.

St. Paul outlasted Indianapolis in a 15-inning battle, winning 5 to 3 after knocking Johnny Vander Meer out of the box in the sixth with a three-run spurge that tied the score. The Indians scored all their runs in the final inning.

Schneidman to Try Comeback With Packers

Rugged Blocking Back Signs Contract; Was Released Last Season

Green Bay — Herman Schneidman, a professional football back with four and a half years of experience at the game, will try for a comeback with the Green Bay Packers this fall.

Coach Curly Lambeau announced yesterday that Schneidman has signed his contract, following a temporary "retirement" in the middle of the 1939 season.

"Schneidman is an experienced, heady player with a particular flair for pass defense," Lambeau said in commenting upon the former University of Iowa gridder's return. "In 1939, he did not display a good mental attitude, and was released, but we feel that he is ready to give us his best this season."

Schneidman is a big man, carrying 200 pounds upon a stockily built frame, and when he is blocking in his best form, there are few National league players who can carve 'em out of the way with more precision. He lives at Quincy, Ill., and since last football season has handled a government job.

As regards the rest of his unassigned players, Coach Lambeau had little comment. Some of them, he intimated, may report without signing, as several did last year, in the expectation that they will come to terms with the corporation before the All-Star game.

O. K. With Packers "This is all right with us," said the coach, "but if after staying here awhile they cannot see their ways clear to signing, we'll have to buy them their transportation back home."

Lambeau had a conversation with Paul Kell, former Notre Dame tackle, recently and expects the big fellow to confer with him within a few days.

The complete Packer roster to date is as follows:

Ends — Bob Adkins, Marshall; Connie Mack Berry, North Carolina State; Dick Evans, Iowa; Milt Gantenbein, Wisconsin; Harry Jancuski, Fordham; Carl Mulle-neaux, Utah State; Raymond Riddick, Fordham; George Seemann, Nebraska.

Tackles — Warren Kilbourne, Minnesota; Charles Schultz, Minnesota; Fred Shirey, Nebraska; Ernie Smith, U. S. C.

Centers — Charlie Brock, Nebraska; Tom Greenfield, Arizona; Bud and George Svendsen, Minnesota.

NIGHT BASSING WORTH TRYING

Pete and I had been fishing for bass one late summer evening without much success. Finally, thinking it too dark for fishing we started for home. A long peninsula jutting far into the lake intrigued us, and we stopped for a few casts. We were using fly rods with cork body feather minnows.

My lure had barely touched the water when there was a swirl on the surface and the rod tip was bending. An instant later Pete hooked a fish. I lost my bass but Pete landed his, a smallmouth weighing just over four pounds.

Now I had heard that bass fishing was good at night but after a few unsuccessful attempts had decided that it was just another fish story. This, however, looked interesting. We rowed up the shore, fishing carefully. About 50 yards from the tip of the peninsula just opposite two prominent birch trees Pete picked up another bass. We continued on for a way without another strike and then started back. At the birch trees Pete took back. At the birch trees Pete took back another bass and at the tip of the peninsula another. Then we quit fishing.

Likes Dark Lures Although I was handling the boat I did almost as much fishing as Pete, but that one strike at the tip of the peninsula was the only one I had. Our feather minnows were exactly the same size and shape... had been made in the same factory... but mine was lighter in color. Subsequent experience with smallmouth at night has convinced me that dark lures are the best. My favorite, selected after much experimenting, is a brown cork body bass bug.

Since that time I have spent many hours fishing after dark for this is one of the most fascinating types of angling, but have learned very little that is new. Later experience has merely verified conclusions drawn that night.

Northern State Notes

Executives of the Northern State league will hold their mid-season meeting Wednesday night in Seymour at the Falk hotel. A number of important matters are scheduled to be ironed out. President Bernard J. Neumann, Two Rivers, will preside.

Manitowoc carried off the first lap championship in the Northern State with nine victories in 11 games. The Shipbuilders had a well balanced outfit and they played hustling ball under the leadership of Manager Al Borths.

Seymour and Clintonville improved as the opening round got well under way but both clubs were a bit too far behind to catch up with Manitowoc. Seymour had a bid to fame however as Row and company scored two wins over the Shipbuilders.

The closing lap promises to be full of fireworks and Manitowoc will have to look to its laurels. Both Seymour and Trucks will be bearing down plenty while Two Rivers and New London will have improved teams on the diamond.

A good sized crowd saw Manitowoc put the skids under Two Rivers by the score of 10-4 on the Polar Bears' home lot. Lefty Feltman was master of the situation at all times and he fielded his position like a major leaguer.

As usual, there was little love lost between teams and it was a scrap all the way despite the one-sided argument. Ziggy Zigmund, Manitowoc veteran, got in the game at first base after Gospy had been chased by Umpire Hooyman.

Outfielders may come and go but when it comes to chasing fly balls, Rolfe Meyer, Two Rivers' center fielder, doesn't have to take his hat off to any gardener in the loop. He made a couple of beauty stabs against the Shipbuilders.

Patty Berg, Golfer, Becomes Professional

Chicago — (AP) — Patty Berg of Minneapolis, women's national golf champion in 1938, turned professional today by signing a six-year contract with a Chicago sporting goods company.

The red-headed Minnesota star will teach the game and give exhibitions on college and high school campuses throughout the nation, said L. B. Icely, head of the Chicago firm. Miss Berg, who has won every title of importance since she first became a sensation six years ago at the age of 16, was expected to begin her work with a tour of Western conference schools.

Grand Forks Back in Northern League Lead

Minneapolis — (AP) — The Northern league's see-saw battle for leadership between the Superior Blues and the Grand Forks Chiefs saw the Chiefs back on top today.

The Chiefs slipped into the lead again with a 3-0 victory last night as Schremer hurled nine-hit ball.

The Duluth Dukes improved their position with a double victory over Crookston, 10-3 and 8-3.

Winnipeg and Wausau put on another slugging match, the Canadians winning 14-11, as Fargo-Moorhead was rained out at Eau Claire.

New York — Ken Overlin, 161, Washington, middleweight champion in New York and California, stopped Harry Balsamo, 170, New York, (9).

Lefty Schoepke was the victim of a ninth inning rally by Seymour which nosed out Manitowoc in a Sunday morning game by the score of 9-8. It was the portside's first appearance for the Borthmen since the season of 1938.

The Krohn brothers doubled as the New London battery against Clintonville and although the Truckers won 6-5, the family pair was about the whole show. Pitcher Krohn didn't allow a hit for five innings while Catcher Krohn got three out of four.

Lefty Long is covering himself with glory in a fielding way around the initial baserock for Clintonville. As yet the first sacker hasn't shown much with the stick but he is due soon to start getting his eye on the ball.

Several of the Wisconsin State league clubs have been trying to do business with Ken Wilda, the Manitowoc outfielder, who is murdering the ball at close to a .500 clip. Wilda, however, plans to stick tight to the Shipbuilders.

Two Rivers has two games booked this Sunday. The Polar Bears play at Seymour in the afternoon and then move over to New London for a night encounter. Then in the other weekend fracas, Manitowoc will be at home to Clintonville.

Seymour made a clean sweep of the weekend games by defeating the High Lifes under the lights at New London by a 14-0 score. Both teams had their batting togs and hits for extra bases were as numerous as the mosquitoes.

Team and Surrey Takes Center Of Stage on Kaukauna Visit

Kaukauna — Charles F. Kuhn, who operates a farm three miles east of High Cliff remembers the days when people stopped to look at an automobile, but he was surprised to see them doing just that at a horse and buggy.

Greybearded Mr. Kuhn and his wife drove to town Monday with their team of spirited western bronchos hitched to a surrey, and found themselves the center of interest on the South side. When Thomas J. Nolan, sesquicentennial vice chairman, saw them, they were invited to drive the rig in the homecoming parade during pageant week.

But the Kuhns complacently refused to get excited about all this fuss. "This is nothing," said Mr. Kuhn. "I've driven to Kaukauna lots of times. Horses took me wherever I wanted to go all my life, and I think they can still do it."

"But we've got to get moving. We have some maple syrup to sell this morning."

The questioners wouldn't let him go just yet. They wanted to know how long the 12-mile drive took him. "We started at 7:30," Mrs. Kuhn answered. "I guess about three hours, not long at all."

Were those really western horses? "Sure they are. See the brands. I always like them. Of course, I'm getting a little old to drive these wild fellows." But then he added that he was only kidding. The horses were really gentle. "The horse they stand."

How long did he have the surrey? "It's about 60 years old, and it's in good shape. Those are the original tires and rims on the wheels."

The trade mark showed that it was manufactured by J. L. Clark, Oshkosh.

Didn't he want a car? "Oh, I've got a car in the barn," he said, "but I don't run it."

Children who never craned their necks to watch an automobile, craned their necks to watch the Kuhns and their western horses and their surrey.

They'll think over the parade idea.

The Kaukauna man had a card that read 40-36-40-46. He went into the second round of the 18-hole course second in the field, and held up well through the first nine of the final round, but difficulty down the home stretch kept him out of the top five winners.

Ham's drives were hard and long. One of the stories that comes back from the tourney is this:

In a practice round he started on a long dog leg hole. Caddie Len Derrus, who went with him on the trip, sized up the situation and told him the foresome ahead was out of range. Ham hit the drive over the crook of the dog leg and the ball in flight struck one of the down-fairway players. The player was not injured, but the distance is the thing. The accident happened 237 yards out, and the ball was still going.

Kaukauna Work Relief Program Ends First Year

Pay Roll of $7,371 Recorded in 12-Month Period, Krahn Reports

Kaukauna — Since the city of Kaukauna started its work relief program a year ago, its pay roll has amounted to $7,371.50, Joseph V. Krahn made known in a report on the first 12 months of operation of the plan.

According to the work program, men who are receiving direct relief from the city are given employment on city projects and paid 50 cents an hour. With the money earned in this way, they repay to the city the relief cost of that month. If the workers owe the city money, for relief previously given them, they pay it back from the balance acquired by doing additional work, above the amount necessary for a single month's relief.

Projects carried on by the city in this program include such things as the building of the stone wall along the roadway near the old Union Bag mill, crushing stone, building sewers and doing road work.

Cost of individual projects during this time has included: Wall at old Union Bag mill, $441; cleaning brick from old mill stack, $1,871; laying sewers, $267.50; crushing stone, $2,941; streets, $67.50; schools, $362.50; parks, $276; snow removal, $1,135.

During May, relief projects cost $1,662.50 in pay roll, the largest share going for crushing stone, $1,352.50. Money paid back to the city for back relief during May amounted to $426. Nineteen of the workmen paid back some of their back relief during the month.

According to Krahn, relief clients like the idea of being able to work for the aid they receive from the city, and prefer this system to that of receiving a free dole.

Rural Resident Hurt In Traffic Accident

Kaukauna — Lloyd J. Broehm, route 3, Kaukauna, suffered cuts about the head and minor bruises in an automobile accident on the corner of Main Avenue and Tenth street at 7:10 this morning.

The Broehm car tipped onto its side near the edge of a deep ditch at the south side of Tenth street. Damage included smashed fenders on both cars, and broken windows and body damage to the Broehm auto.

Mr. and Mrs. George Egan and family, Wisconsin avenue, are vacationing at their cottage on Lake Winnebago.

Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Bolinske and family, 720 Grignon street, are spending a vacation at a cottage near Shawano.

100 Delegates Expected at Benefit Association Rally

Kaukauna — A district rally of the Women's Benefit association will bring about 100 delegates together in Kaukauna tonight for a 6:30 banquet and program at the Hotel Kaukauna. The Kaukauna drill team will perform at the program.

Dick Oudenhoven was honored at his birthday anniversary Monday when five Kaukauna couples and an Appleton couple gave a surprise party for him at his summer cottage at Stockbridge Harbor.

The evening was spent in boating, playing volleyball, and cards. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Weyenberg, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Vandenberg, Mr. and Mrs. Al Hartzheim, Mr. and Mrs. David Hartjes, Mr. and Mrs. Greg Vandenberg, all of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. George Oudenhoven, Appleton.

Plans for a picnic July 22, were made at a meeting of the women's auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at their Lawe street home clubhouse Monday night. The picnic will be the first held at the park in connection with the home. Each woman will bring a covered dish and table service. The committee in charge of the affair is Mrs. Emma Spry, Mrs. Mabel Swedberg and Mrs. Ellen Streich.

At Monday's meeting prizes in cards were won by Mrs. Jesse Birkenmeyer, sheephead; Mrs. Joseph Brandt, bridge; Mrs. Rose Kloehn, 500 rummy. The committee in charge of the program was Mrs. D. Molly Starke, Mrs. Agnes Smith and Mrs. Alice Schell.

III—On to Orleans

On her first visit to the government officer, Joan of Arc was not treated well. He laughed at the idea of "voices" telling her to save France, and ordered her to go home.

Nine months later, when barely 17 years of age, she went again to the same man. This time he agreed to write a letter to the Dauphin about her plan.

Joan also called on the Duke of Lorraine, and from him received a gift of money to help her on her way. She promised to pray for him while she was making the journey to see the Dauphin.

To reach the palace of the Dauphin, she headed for the city of Chinon, a distance of more than 200 miles. With her went two soldiers.

Joan of Arc going to the relief of Orleans.

The Dauphin at this time was 26 years old. He claimed the right to the French throne, but had not been crowned. His armies had suffered setbacks, and Orleans, one of his chief cities was under siege. When Joan of Arc came before him, he listened to her story and wondered whether or not it was true. In an effort to settle the question, he turned her over to a committee of priests. The priests asked her many questions, and at length they decided she was following the counsel of good spirits.

An army was raised for the girl to lead. At its head, she rode toward Orleans. The soldiers and residents of Orleans were hungry, and the king feared they would give up if help did not reach them quickly.

A prophecy had been given that France would be "saved by a maid." Perhaps it was this prophecy which gave cheer to the soldiers as they marched to save Orleans.

Orleans was guarded by walls about 25 feet in height. They were from six to 12 feet thick, and from them rose 24 towers. With little fighting, Joan and her army entered the city. Their coming gave new courage to the 50,000 persons behind the walls.

Paltzer Herd High in June Production

Registered Holstein Cows Average 53.4 Pounds of Butterfat

The Robert Paltzer registered Holstein herd produced 24,280 pounds of milk or an average of 53.4 pounds per cow to lead production in the Outagamie County Dairy Herd Improvement association, No. 5, during June, according to Merlin Wolf, fieldman.

Third place went to the grade Holstein herd of Paul Kroes with 44.6 pounds, fourth to the Bert Zobel herd with 40.9 pounds, and fifth to the Ed Vogel herd with 38.4 pounds. High in individual production was a cow in the Paltzer herd. It showed 81.4 pounds of butterfat. Another cow in the same herd was second with 69.5 pounds. Third was a cow, owned by Alfred Techlin, which produced 66.4 pounds. A third cow in the Paltzer herd was next high with 64.8 pounds, and fifth, a cow in the Paul Kroes herd with 64.7 pounds.

Parity Payments On Wheat, Corn Hit High Totals

$1,462,114 Paid to Wisconsin Farmers Under 1939 Program

Wisconsin farmers have received $1,462,114.77 in parity payments under the 1939 price adjustment program, according to figures received by J. F. Magnus, county agent, from officials of the AAA.

Total price adjustment payments for the United States under this program are expected to total $218,424,368 when all payments have been made. Payments to farmers of other states in this region are expected to be as follows: Illinois, $13,704,346; Indiana, $9,839,784; Iowa, $19,143,006; Michigan, $1,497,597; Minnesota, $6,980,417; Missouri, $7,600,032; Nebraska, $10,988,217; Ohio, $5,537,826; and South Dakota, $4,493,199.

Price adjustment payments, it is explained, are made to farmers who restrict their planted acreage of corn, wheat and cotton to their acreage allotments. For Wisconsin, parity payments were made to wheat farmers and to corn farmers in the commercial corn counties.

Farmers in the commercial corn counties of Wisconsin received approximately $1,162,000 in parity payments on corn. Wisconsin wheat farmers received about $100,000 in wheat parity payments.

The distribution of parity payments to the leading counties in Wisconsin was as follows: Dane, $209,073; Rock $171,692; Grant, $167,542; Columbia, $133,428; Walworth, $119,998; Lafayette, $108,607; Sauk, $104,604; Jefferson, $98,257; Green, $91,921; Iowa, $79,258; Richland, $43,091; and Crawford, $40,894.

Parity payments are in addition to, and entirely separate from, payments made under the agricultural conservation program which in Wisconsin totalled $12,529,521 in 1939.

Cooling Tank Aid To Quality Milk

Hot sultry summer weather need not prevent dairymen from marketing quality milk if they have a good milk cooling tank and a cold water supply. J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent, advises farmers.

According to L. O. Hanson, concrete engineer, and Max LaRock, extension agricultural engineer, at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, good tanks usually are built either as plain concrete tanks or as double wall concrete tanks with insulation.

These men find that the plain concrete tank can be made a satisfactory cooling unit by observing three things: These include separating the tank from the milk house walls, submerging the tank so that the top is only twelve inches above the floor line, and providing an insulated cover. If the tank is built a full six inches inside of the milk house foundation walls, the space between the tank and the foundation can be filled with hard burned cinders. This helps prevent freezing in winter and helps keep the water cool in summer.

As most tanks are located in the end of the building, the ends and back can be similarly insulated. This cinder fill can then be capped with two or three inches of concrete, as a means of keeping the cinders dry and effective as an insulator. A good lightweight cover can be made out of one and an eighth by four inch lumber as a frame, with one inch rigid insulation between. The lid can then be covered top and bottom with galvanized No. 26 iron, and the joints or seams soldered to make it moisture proof.

It is necessary, of course, that the water be pumped directly from the well to the tank through pipes buried in the ground.

The traditional "ol' swimmin' hole" of the typical Wisconsin community is steadily being superseded by modern artificial swimming pools, completely managed with a view toward insuring health, sanitation and safety.

Ball Game to Follow Annual Greenville Grange Dinner

A ball game between the South Greenville Grange and the Greenville Merchants will highlight the afternoon program following the annual chicken dinner to be served by South Greenville Grange next Sunday at the Grange hall. Serving will begin at 11 o'clock and the game will start at 1 o'clock.

Egg Production Cut By Hot Summer Days

Hot days mean lowered production, slower development and poorer egg quality, John B. Hayes of the state poultry department says in a bulletin received by County Agent J. F. Magnus.

Hayes pointed out that any considerable drop in egg production may be checked by feeding a moist mash at noon. The dry mash should be moistened with either milk or water to a crumbly condition and this should be fed in an amount that will be cleaned up in 10 to 15 minutes.
